Lottery Clamps: Curtis

Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis said today he is taking measures to tighten up safeguards and controls on the handling of lottery tickets.

Curtis' statement came in the wake of the dismissal of Jack Stewart as director of the B.C. Lotteries Branch.

Stewart was suspended in October and fired last week on the recommendation of the Western Canadian Lottery Foundation for irregularities involving unsold tickets.

Jim Taylor has been acting director of the B.C. Lotteries Branch since Stewart's dismissal.

Deputy Premier Grace McCarthy said today she can't comment on the firing because Stewart may fight his dismissal or take it to the courts.

The minister said the lottery foundation has a rigorous audit process but obviously one that can be confused.

McCarthy was provincial secretary and responsible for lotteries when Stewart held the $30,000 post.

Stewart is alleged to have cashed seven unsold bonus tickets valued at $25 each in order to finance a retirement function and a gift for a retiring employee.

He has since paid back the $175.

Vance Heading Home As Peace Bid Fails

Times News Services

U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance left Israel for Cairo and home today following a final round of talks with Israeli leaders that failed to reach an accord on a peace treaty he had sought to win by Sunday's deadline.

According to a Cairo spokesman, the talks now face a crisis.

Before he left Israel a spokesman said Vance may resume what has shaped up as another round of shuttle diplomacy "after Christmas with a view to bring about the signing of an Israeli-Egyptian treaty then."

After Vance's departure, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said that "certain differences" remain in the Egyptian and Israeli positions on the draft treaty. He called a special cabinet session for Friday.

Assistant U.S. Secretary of State Harold Saunders said the proposals brought from Cairo Wednesday were in part American ideas and Egyptian demands, according to the armed forces radio. It quoted Saunders as saying the Americans "have some sympathy for the Egyptian demands."

Saunders also said in a briefing for Israeli reporters that Begin would give Vance a final answer on the new Cairo proposals only after the Friday cabinet meeting.

The cabinet was not expected to make any "spectacular changes" in the Israeli position and was expected to reaffirm Begin's stance, Israeli sources said.

Vance is returning to Washington on orders from President Carter, who instructed him to return Friday — with or without a treaty.

RED TAPE JOB FOR ENEMARK

The moves see deputy Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Tex Enemark move to the office of Deregulation Minister Sam Bawlf.

Bawlf said today Enemark will head and direct all red-tape cutting efforts in the new ministry.

Replacing Enemark is former RCMP commissioner Peter Bazowski, who will be paid about $46,000 as deputy minister.

The appointment of Bazowski eliminates him as a candidate for the position of ombudsman.

Bawlf said Enemark's switch was voluntary and Enemark is looking forward to the new challenge.

Bazowski will now serve under Corporate Affairs Minister Jim Nielsen.

Tel Puts Rate Hike On Hold

No increase in B.C. Telephone rates is seen for a year, the company said today after reporting earnings $25 million higher than allowed by anti-inflation guidelines.

The Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission agreed Wednesday that the additional earnings will be applied to 1979 income, rather than order B.C. Tel to give subscribers a rebate or rollback its rates as it has the authority to do.

The higher-than-expected earnings were partly the result of a work stoppage in late 1977 which continued into February, 1978. It resulted in a $5.5 million reduction in operating expenses.

A substantial increase in toll message traffic starting in July also resulted in higher revenues than forecast.

Under the anti-inflation laws, the telephone company could be ordered to pay direct refunds to its subscribers or roll back prices.

The CRTC, however, said it is allowing the company to retain the excess revenue and to credit it to 1979 operating revenue.

The commission said if the money were refunded to subscribers the most likely result would be an immediate application for an increase in rates.

Bail Pondered For FLQ Couple

MONTREAL (CP) — Jacques and Louise Cossette-Trudel will spend the weekend in jail before finding out whether they are to be released on bail to await trial on charges arising from the 1970 kidnapping of British diplomat James Cross.

The couple entered no plea today when they were arraigned on charges of conspiracy to kidnap, kidnapping, attempted extortion and forcible detention.

After a two-hour hearing, Chief Judge Yves Mayrand of sessions court announced he would delay his decision on bail until Monday. At that time, he is expected to set a date for a preliminary hearing to determine whether the couple must stand trial.

The couple were not required by law to enter a plea at the arraignment. Unless they choose to plead guilty at a later date, a preliminary hearing will be held just as if they had pleaded not guilty.

The Cossette-Trudels did not indicate whether they preferred trial by judge alone or by jury. Chief Judge Mayrand informed them that if they stood trial, they would be tried by jury unless they chose otherwise.

At the request of the defence, the judge imposed a strict publication ban on all arguments during the bail hearing.

While awaiting Monday's ruling, the Cossette-Trudels were expected to be taken to separate provincial detention centres for men and women.

About a dozen policemen ringed the courtroom, checking identification carefully before allowing spectators into the room.

The question of how they would plead has aroused interest because a long trial might, in effect, become a public inquiry into the entire October Crisis. On the other hand, a guilty plea would cut short the proceedings with no testimony.

On Wednesday, Prime Minister Trudeau refused to comment on a statement by Quebec Premier Rene Levesque, who said the eight years the Cossette-Trudels have spent in exile should be taken into account if they are found guilty.

"We all would be better not to meddle with what is before the courts," Trudeau told the Commons.

. . . No Escape From Poverty

It will be a searing Christmas in Botswana, with temperatures climbing to 100 degrees F, not only in the sweltering Kalahari Desert to the south but also in the more arable lands to the northeast.

There will be no escape from the heat — or the poverty.

For many, Christmas dinner will be the same as it was the day before and as it will be the day after — a bowl of crushed maize.

Maize is the diet of the very poor in Botswana.

Lacking protein, a maize diet leads to sickness if it is not supplemented.

The grim fact is that children fed exclusivley on maize will get marasmus, an affliction that causes the body to wither away. Protein deficiency research has revealed that the brain never develops properly in children who do not receive adequate protein during the early years of life.

Today in Botswana there is malnutrition, poverty . . . need.

The Unitarian Service Committee of Canada is once again raising funds nationally to help Botswana and other underdeveloped countries in the world. Last year the USC raised $2.8 million and $31,369 of that came from generous Victoria residents.

This Christmas the Times is once again helping the USC raise funds for needy causes. If you want to help you can. Just reach for your wallet.

Donations may be made at the Times business office or sent to The Victoria Times, Post Office Box 300, Victoria, V8W 2N4 — or left at any branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia. Cheques should be made payable to the Unitarian Service Committee.

$100,000 Farewell Present

WINNIPEG (CP) — Frank Griffin, 65, of Kelowna, was given a whopper of a retirement present last week when he reeeived a wallet containing what proved to be a $100,000 winning lottery ticket.

Griffin was given the wallet and Western Express Lottery ticket at a combination birthday - retirement party and had to be reminded to check the newspapers for winning numbers after the Dec. 6 draw.

He said he saw his number listed but, afraid to phone and learn it was all a mistake, he sent the stub by registered mail to lottery officials in Winnipeg.

Probe Stalled on ICBC Rip-Off Allegations

An investigation into allegations that an Insurance Corporation of B.C. adjuster in Victoria tried to cheat a Sooke couple has stalled.

An ICBC spokesman said Wednesday completion of the probe is being held up because the claimants, Ian Gilchrist and Karen Lennox, have refused to speak to the investigators.

However, Lennox denies the claim.

In an interview today, she said she and Gilchrist are willing to talk to officials but only in the presence of their lawyer.

"If they (ICBC officials) are really uptight about knowing what happened then all they have to do is look at the story in the newspaper (the Dec. 7 editions of the Times). Those are the true facts.

"We only felt it was important to bring the matter to public attention. The rest is up to ICBC, not us."

The couple allege they overheard an adjuster say he had ripped them off for a set of expensive wheels in a claim for Gilchrist's 1976 Ford, demolished in an accident in Sooke Sept. 29.

When they complained, the adjuster's supervisor, John Lubinich, increased the settlement from $3,400 to $3,935.

The truck was subsequently sold on tender for $900 to Jack Evans of Dun Here Auto Body in Sidney.

Sandy Pearson, senior claims manager for ICBC, said Wednesday he assigned a claims manager in Vancouver and an ICBC employee in Victoria to carry out an "in-depth" investigation into the Sooke couple's allegations.

Pearson said the two are taking written statements from all those involved in the case. He said any suggestion the investigation should be handled by police is totally unwarranted.

A police probe would give the public the impression there is a criminal aspect to the case, he maintained, adding statements given by the adjuster fail to show any intent to defraud.

Don Sandberg, manager of ICBC's special investigation unit which normally looks into allegations of employee wrongdoing, said he has not taken part in the investigation and doesn't expect to be called in.

Pearson said the adjuster based the $3,400 settlement with Gilchrist on an average he received from quotations from two dealers in Victoria.

He said the adjuster was concerned that Gilchrist

'Enough Arms to Start War'

Times News Services

A wide assortment of weapons seized across the country in Canada's biggest gun-smuggling crackdown included enough automatic weapons to start a small war, police said today.

Among them was a rocket launcher said capable of knocking down a plane, found in a home in the Toronto suburb of Mississauga.

And in Vanderhoof, one man has been arrested and parts of restricted weapons seized in a raid on a private home.

An RCMP spokesman said that photographs and documents pertaining to the restricted weapons were also seized in the Vanderhoof raid.

Johnny Penner, 33, has been charged with possession of a prohibited weapon.

Eleven men were arrested earlier this week in Ontario, Quebec and Nova Scotia following a six-month investigation by Ontario Provincial Police, RCMP and United States authorities.

The investigations involved trafficking of prohibited weapons in Canada and the U.S.

Constable John Dadd of the Ontario Provincial Police news bureau said today a cache of 200 automatic weapons was discovered in Quebec.

"Perhaps (gun) collectors would be after the odd automatic weapon — but 200?" he said.

The constable said no political connection has been found in the weapons ring and it not yet known how many persons are involved or how many more weapons will be seized.

Police have said they have no evidence of the arms going to international terrorists and believe some of the weapons are used by criminals and motorcycle gangs fighting for control of the illegal drugs trade. Others are for collectors.

Figures released by police so far show about 2,000 weapons seized in Ontario, B.C., Nova Scotia and Quebec. Constable Dadd said FN rifles, which are standard issue in the Canadian forces, are among weapons found. Police also have found Israeli Uzi machine-guns and A-10 and A-15 ma-

'Last Chance' for Shah: Figurehead Position

TEHRAN (UPI) — Prominent Iranian politicians today presented Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi with a "last chance" plan that would make the shah a nominal figurehead and turn all power over to a crown council.

The shah met to discuss the plan with former Prime Minister Ali Amini, who has been serving as a go-between in talks between the shah and his political opposition.

An announcement was expected from the palace on Saturday, political sources said.

But Kambiz Yazdanpanah, director-general of the shah's press section, denied the reports, saying "the whole thing is an absolute fabrication."

"It is not possible," he said. "These days in Iran every single word that goes out has to be based on facts. It is stupid, senseless reporting. The facts have to be sorted out."

While the talks went on, pro-shah forces continued a wave of backlash violence against opponents of the regime that has killed at least 50 people in the last two days.

A general strike called by Moslem leaders paralyzed the ancient city of Isfahan today and citizens boycotted the ceremony at which a new statue of the shah was unveiled to replace one destroyed in rioting earlier this week.

Under the plan presented today, the shah would hand over all power to a crown council made up of eight or nine respected Iranians, including two members of the armed forces.

The crown council would act quickly to appoint a government with wide-ranging political representations that would pave the way for national elections in June, political sources said.

The sources said the shah discussed the plan Wednesday with popular opposition leader Karim Sanjabi, who told the shah that he would not take part in a coalition government.

The sources said, however, that Sanjabi, the leader of the National Front, would probably soften up once the shah agreed to hand over all powers.

"The shah has been torn between trying to struggle along or abdicating," one prominent politician said.

"Abdication we think would be a disaster," he said.

Quake in Iran

STOCKHOLM (AP) — A strong earthquake hit southwestern Iran today, the Hagfors Seismological Observatory reported.

A spokesman said the quake registered 6.2 on the Richter Scale and occurred at 10:05 a.m. Iran time.

He said three small after shocks also were registered.

Chaplin Body Snatchers Jailed

VEVEY, Switzerland (CP) — Two East European refugees who pleaded guilty to stealing the body of comedian Charlie Chaplin were sentenced today, one to 4½ years in prison and the other to an 18-month suspended term.

At a one-day hearing last Monday, Roman Wardas, a 24-year-old unemployed Pole, and Gantcho Ganev, a 38-year-old Bulgarian car mechanic, admitted they stole the body from a cemetery in this village last March in the hope of getting a share of the "extreme wealth" they believed Chaplin left his family.

The grave thieves had demanded a ransom of $600,000 from the late film star's family. The body was recovered and the ransom was never paid.

Wardas, alleged mastermind of the crime, was given the 4½-year sentence, and his accomplice the suspended term.

They were convicted on charges of disturbing the peace of the dead and attempted extortion, carrying a maximum penalty of 7½ years in prison.

The defence had appealed for mercy, saying the two men were typical of the downtrodden dignified by the great comedian in his films.

Prosecutor Willi Heim had demanded a six-year jail term for Wardas and four years for Ganev.

If you can find a better sounding $949. stereo system,

We'll eat it!

($949 buys you all the music)

Lets Talk About Value

It's really easy to get price deals on hi-fi equipment these days. If you just look through this paper, you'll see stereo systems marked down on page after page.

But most deals on stereo systems are like any other kind. When you pay a cheap price, you usually get a cheap product. So why buy it? In the end, it's not going to satisfy you. It's not going to give you that special feeling you get when you listen to your favorite music on a really great system. What's more, it's liable to break down.

And that's why at Sound Hounds we don't just try to give you the lowest possible prices on stereo systems. Instead, we give you the lowest possible prices on the very best stereo systems on the market. And that's a promise.

Let's Talk About the Components

The heart of System $949 is the new Advent loudspeaker (the successor to the original best-selling Advent loudspeaker), which we're offering in its utility walnut-grain finish. A pair of the new Advents cover the full ten-octave range of audible sound with unbeatable balance and clarity—and with high-frequency output that's been increased to take advantage of today's best recordings. Their bass, by the way, is not only unsurpassed but mainly unapproached.

To drive the Advents in our $949 System, we have the new Onkyo TX 2500 II stereo receiver. The Onkyo powers the new Advents admirably, and its FM and AM reception brings in those hard-to-get stations up and down the dial.

The Pioneer PL514 automatic return turntable rounds things out. (Beautifully and gently with your records).

We're so sure this music system will outperform everything on the market that we'll eat any stereo system you find that costs less and sounds better.

Choppers Beat UDI Sanctions

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The U.S. state department said late Wednesday that 11 helicopters — a version of the UH-1 Huey Iroquois used by U.S. troops in Vietnam — have been delivered to Rhodesia in violation of United Nations trade sanctions against that country.

"We are investigating all possible routes by which Rhodesia might have obtained these helicopters," department spokesman Sue Pittman said. "We do not yet know how these helicopters might have reached Rhodesia."

She said the helicopters are Bell 205s — a commercial version of the Huey which has been manufactured in the United States and other countries under U.S. licence. She declined to identify the other countries.

Ms. Pittman said: "The state and commerce departments are reviewing records of all recent commercial transactions to determine who might have been responsible for the delivery."

She added that resale or transfer of the helicopters would have to receive approval by the commerce department and that this has not been granted.

Therefore, she said, the delivery of the helicopters is "in clear violation of U.S. regulations issued pursuant to United Nations sanctions against Rhodesia."

The UN ordered an international trade embargo against Rhodesia in 1965 when the colony declared independence from Britain.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Ian Smith said the guerrilla-sparked fire raging today in a Salisbury fuel depot for the fourth day was one of the "biggest setbacks" of his government's six-year war against black rebels.

Both wind and rain hampered firefighters' attempts to extinguish the blaze set by guerrilla saboteurs at a major fuel processing compound housing Shell, British Petroleum and Total facilities.

Despite the presence of South African oil fire experts and a Johannesburg Fire Brigade truck flown in Wednesday, flames whipped by suddenly shifting winds engulfed a tank that had been intact.

The incident occured about 20 minutes before a grim-looking Smith appeared to inspect the damage.

Fuel is delivered to Rhodesia in violation of international trade sanctions by the self-managed South African subsidiaries of major Western oil companies and Rhodesia must pay for it with hard currency.

Wider Curbs Urged at UN

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — The UN General Assembly recommended Wednesday wider economic sanctions against Rhodesia and an oil embargo against South Africa, which supplies gasoline to the Rhodesians.

Only the Security Council can apply enforcement measures, and the assembly asked that it urgently begin consideration of the recommendation.

The assembly also condemned the supply of oil to Rhodesia by British and other companies which circumvented existing sanctions and deplored the alleged complicity of successive British governments.

Britain was one of 15 members abstaining on the resolution.

The assembly also called on Britain, which ruled the colony before it declared unilateral independence 13 years ago, to take measures to bring about Rhodesia's legal independence and not to give the present regime powers or attributes of sovereignty.

The internal settlement reached last March 3, which installed a biracial administration in Salisbury, was condemned and declared null and void. All states were asked not to recognize the settlement.

Sensitive and Realistic

It has taken little more than a week in his new job for Rafe Mair to show he is a good choice as environment minister for B.C. Mair's sensitive and realistic decision on the subject of wolf-poisoning augurs well for the future of fish, wildlife and environmental concerns.

The question of wolf-poisoning on the Bonaparte plateau near Kamloops and in various parts of northern B.C. was threatening to become a major confrontation for the government. Not only the usual environmental groups but animal-lovers (including veterinarians) across the province were horrified at the thought that the government was planning to wipe out entire wolf populations in specific areas and to do it in many cases with a slow-acting, inhumane poison tantamount to torturing the animals to death. Concerns had also been raised that other animals, wild or domestic, might accidentally eat the poison bait and face the same lingering death.

The program had been proposed by the fish and wildlife branch, then under the recreation and conservation ministry of Sam Bawlf, and despite weeks of outcry, the government showed no signs of modifying its position.

Then Premier Bennett shuffled his ministers, moving the fish and wildlife branch to the environment ministry and giving that ministry to Mair. Just eight days later, on Tuesday, Mair announced a moratorium on the poisoning of all predatory animals throughout the province.

Instead of beginning a poisoning program immediately, the ministry will hold off on it while undertaking major studies to see if alternatives to poisoning are available for wolf control. Ranchers in the Interior and North are convinced some type of population control is needed to prevent their herds from being attacked by wolves.

But Mair says the government is willing to look at all options, including the hunting of specific wolves or wolf packs that seem to be attacking livestock and the expansion of experimental taste-aversion programs, a sort of canine version of the Antabuse program for alcoholics. Equally important, he is willing to talk to all groups concerned with the problem, both the ranchers and the wildlife/conservation groups.

Wisely, Mair has not closed off any options for himself. If his studies show that no alternative but poisoning would be effective in preventing significant economic damage from wolves, he can reinstate the program. If that is the regrettable decision that must be taken, it is to be hoped that so much information has been made public that most citizens will recognize the inevitability of the step.

But even more it is to be hoped that Mair, in declaring the moratorium, has given his ministry time to find an alternative that will ensure wolves do not damage livestock herds without the need for the poisoning program. Maintaining the balance like that between economic and environmental needs is what the environment ministry should be all about.

Let's Wait Awhile

One of the first decisions Grace McCarthy will have to make as human resources minister is whether to proceed quickly with proposals for a new Family and Child Services Act put forward in a white paper last fall.

The government's intentions seemed good when it issued the paper and asked for public feedback over a four-month period, scheduled to end Dec. 31. But, unfortunately, it hasn't worked.

First there were unavoidable delays within government in preparing a package that the public could use to understand the proposals. Then there was the mail strike. Regrettably, other problems arose because the government seemed unenthusiastic in having its civil servants talk about the legislation.

The result of all these problems is that the white paper has not done what it was meant to do. Despite its importance, it has not attracted much public interest. It has not been thoroughly debated, either by those who would be most involved in its implementation or by the public at large. Many individuals and groups are finding it impossible to meet the December deadline for comments.

Mrs. McCarthy should announce now that she is willing to delay the bill for a year. She should then extend the deadline for public submissions by several months and make energetic efforts to encourage more discussion of the key issues.

The result would surely be a better bill for today's children and the children of the future.

"Begin, Carter, Sadat, Vance, Trudeau, Chretien . . . we need some new blood on the 11 o'clock news . . . Broadbent, Clark, Somoza, Levesque, Amin, Smith, Danson . . . I'm even tired of the Shah of Iran and he's only been on for five weeks. . ."

Very Low-key Mini-summit

OTTAWA — The need to discuss with the Queen the government's proposals for selection of her next representative in Canada was in itself a normal reason for the low-key approach to the prime minister's latest trip to London and Paris.

This is not the sort of matter that custom and courtesy deem suitable for a blaze of publicity: under our system of government relations between a prime minister and the sovereign, or her representative, are very special indeed and perhaps the most confidential in the entire gambit of government.

There was, however, another reason for a low-key approach and this was the nature of the talks with English Prime Minister James Callaghan and French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing. A reasonable regularity in meetings between world leaders is desirable simply because human beings, not automatons, are involved and it is well that they should know each other increasingly well and maintain contact.

The practical difficulty that arises is that the benefits are intangible, hard to define in the first place and even harder to make seem convincing to a skeptical audience. This problem is particularly real in the political environment of Canada at the present time, with the polls showing increasing government unpopularity when an election can only be months away.

Among the Seven

If Trudeau had allowed this trip to be much touted in advance, it would have been extremely easy for his political opponents to snap that it had no importance in relation to Canadian problems and that it would have been better for the prime minister to have kept his nose to the local grindstone.

That in fact would not be fair. The main reason for the meetings with the British and French leaders seems to have been to talk over world developments since the Bonn summit in July of the world's seven leading industrial nations. Although no tangible results could possibly come from a few hours talk of this sort that does not mean that the exercise is without value.

The big seven summits have been a very mixed bag. The first that Canada attended, the one in Puerto Rico, could be seen only a few months later as complacent and unrealistic. It is disconcerting in retrospect to realize that the leaders of these seven leading nations as late as summer 1976 had not yet understood that the problems facing all their countries were deep and tenacious. Few things have been less justified than the relative optimism that marked that particular summit meeting.

They did a little better 10 months later in London in the sense that by then the fog had cleared away and there was no escaping the reality that the world was in a good deal of economic trouble: endemic inflation at a disturbingly high rate, slow growth accompanied by persistent unemployment at disturbing levels, in some national cases the worst since the depression of the 1930s.

But if Puerto Rico had been complacent, London was platitudinous. The seven leaders approached the right problems but dealt with them in generalities and statements of goals — or of hopes — that were not far from being the mouthings of motherhood ideas.

JAMES CALLAGHAN

then they understood all too well that these contemporary problems cannot be wished away and are not disappearing on their own at any impressive rate of speed. They attempted to deal with specifics and, indeed, their conclusions met that criterion. Quite clear undertakings aimed at easing some of these problems were announced by the leaders of the United States, Germany and Japan.

That being so, the world does not seem very different in December than it did in July and it is most unlikely that there will have been any great change when the leaders meet again sometime next year. That says a good deal about economic summitry.

In the political-military field, it has long been accepted that only two sets of conditions really justify summit meetings. The ideal summit is of the sort where lesser men have worked long and hard on the problems and created a situation from which the men at the top can emerge smiling and shaking hands in agreement. The less desirable, but still potentially useful sort of summit meeting involves exactly the opposite set of circumstances. When foreign and defence ministers have become hopelessly deadlocked and unable to make progress, there can be an advantage in taking the problem a step above them to see whether the men at the top can agree on some principle that will permit those below them to make progress.

Neither of these approaches is applicable to the sort of economic problems that confront the world today. The difficulty does not lie in international disagreements, although there are a good many of those around today. It lies in the fact that none of the nations really knows the answers to these widespread problems and where one country thinks it sees things that another ought to be doing there usually turn out to be sound reasons why this is in fact difficult for the second nation. This is true, for instance, of the German conviction that the United States must reduce its energy consumption and crude oil imports as the essential step towards an improved balance of payments situation and a sounder dollar.

Interesting Musings

In theory, the German view is correct. Yet we have all seen the great difficulty President Carter had in getting an energy package accepted by congress. The Americans in their turn are convinced that the Japanese must reduce their huge payments surplus and so they must. The Japanese do not disagree but they do see, with greater clarity than Carter, why it is difficult to achieve this reduction.

Two of the most important commitments at Bonn were made by President Carter and Prime Minister Fukuda. In the months since then, Carter's greatest achievement, by far, has been his success in hammering out the Camp David framework for further development by Egypt and Israel. Since Bonn, Fukuda has lost the leadership of the ruling Japanese party and with that loss goes the prime minister's office.

Callaghan has faced a massive challenge to this most important policies (and to common-sense) from the unions which support his Labor party.

Trudeau has a philosophical turn of mind. If the others are like-minded they had room for some interesting musings on economic summits and their aftermath.

Propaganda?

It was first with concern, and then amazement and disbelief that I read a recent article The Bloody Road to Zimbabwe, published in the Weekend magazine and distributed in the Dec. 2 issue of your newspaper. There is much evidence to contest the legitimacy and accuracy of many points in the article. My main concern, however, is that Weekend and, by implication, your newspaper, have allowed yourselves to serve as a propaganda platform for an illegal racist government, a government whose existence is deplored by our own government, the United Nations, and almost every country on earth.

I question the authority and knowledge of the author, Jim Christy. He writes from the perspective of a credulous journalist dropped into a complex situation of violence without having done his homework. It is difficult to find any attempt at an objective or non-biased evaluation of official Rhodesian government positions. He makes no attempt to provide historical background information and no attempt to cover the opposition of the Patriotic Front. The article only reports and supports the current government.

The article devotes a lot of space (as well as several lurid photographs) in describing alleged "terrorist" atrocities in Rhodesia without so much as one mention of the many internationally documented atrocities carried out by Smith's troops. So far as international opposition to Smith's regime is concerned, Christy devotes one paragraph to informing us that everyone — Russians, British, Americans — are wrong in giving any support or recognition to the Patriotic Front. Here, as elsewhere, he does not back up any of his statements with references.

One begins to suspect outright pro-Smith (and racist) propaganda when, in referring to the internal situation in Rhodesia, Christy states, "What the whites really think is that Africans are inferior. White liberals in other countries who call for majority rule are afraid to admit that it is not a smooth transition from the Kraal to the Parliament buildings." This has been the Ian Smith line for years. It assumes that Africans are incapable of governing themselves without white supervision and, in so doing, it totally ignores the many examples of good, responsible governments in Africa today.

Finally, the article reports several conversations Christy apparently had with whites in Rhodesia. But how many blacks did he speak to, and under what circumstances?

One is forced to return to the original thesis put forward at the beginning of this letter — is this article an intentional piece of pro-Smith propaganda, and if so, one is forced to the conclusion that the editors of Weekend must either share this view or else they are incredibly misinformed about the dynamics of the situation in southern Africa today, for Christy's article can hardly be termed objective reporting. — David C. Stott, 3070 Washington Avenue.

Regional History

It was quite refreshing to read that our Esquimalt MLA, Lyle Kahl is not too strongly in favor of the Capital Regional Board.

The defeat of the last incorporation referendum held in the Western Communities — we prefer to be called Langford, Colwood and Metchosin — proves that the people here do not want more government and are generally opposed to the regional board.

I also challenge the right of the CRB to have any control in this area. We will have to go back into history for the reason for this statement.

The first talks about the regional board took place in the original Millstream Fish and Chip shop. Those present were Mrs. Jean Boulter, Mrs. Shepherd, Mr. Harry Rouse of the Hi-Way News, and myself.

Meetings were held in various places and an all-day session was held at the Belmont high school on a Saturday. At these meetings, it was quoted many times that "We could opt out at anytime we wanted to."

There was a vote taken, and the wording on the ballot was "you will elect one candidate to study regional board."

In Colwood Mr. Reader was elected, in Metchosin Mr. Ken Rainey and in Langford Mr. Ralph Willings.

I have never read or heard of any report from these gentlemen and the next thing was that we had a regional board, like it or not.

I can see where the CRB may have some legal control over the core municipalities because the mayors and aldermen accepted the CRB for the people in those areas. We were not given any say in the matter.

I have searched for a copy of that first ballot and I have failed to get any information on it. Maybe the press would have something in their files.

In closing, I would like to have a vote in these areas and the wording on that ballot should read "Are you in favor of the CRB?"

In the first talks it was Mini-Metro, but this had a bad sound to it, so it became the CRD. As one of the defeated candidates in the first election I do have a clear picture of what happened. — F. H. Boulter, Langford.

On Assassinations

"On that day . . . when crime dons the apparel of innocence, it is innocence that is called upon to justify its existence." — Albert Camus

Regarding Anthony Lewis' article on Mark Lane in the Dec. 7 edition of the Times (Lane Cashes In On Witch Doctor Syndrome):

It is not so much what Lewis says, but what he implies that upsets me. Without directly saying so, he implies that just because Mark Lane is on the lunatic fringe, so are all of the other assassination conspiracy researchers.

Why does he not mention the hundreds of other researchers that have made assassination research their life's work? Why does he not mention people like Sylvia Meagher, Edward Jay Epstein, Harold Weisberg, Josiah Thompson, etc.? Could it be, heaven forbid, that these are reliable, hard-working folk, who have nothing to do with any cults, and who have honestly proven almost conclusively that the Warren Commission is an outright lie? It seems to me that too many people have worked too long and hard to be discredited by the likes of Mark Lane and Anthony Lewis.

Lewis ends his tirade by saying, "A country that goes on listening to the likes of Mark Lane is longing for witch doctors," once again subtly implying that all assassination researchers are lunatics like Mark Lane. That is akin to saying, "How long are we going to tolerate Italians because they are obviously all like Benito Mussolini?" It does't make any sense.

With what we now know about CIA activity in the Bay of Pigs, Chile, foreign assassination plots, bizzare mass human brainwashing experiments in California, etc., etc., how can anyone preclude the possibility of conspiracies in American assassinations?

In a 1975 poll, 68 per cent of Americans polled believed that there was a conspiracy to kill JFK — that there is insurmountable evidence against the Warren Commission's single assassin theory. Lewis says, "he flushes spirits from the grassy knolls of history." It seems that most people now know that there were more than just spirits behind the grassy knoll fence in Dallas. Lewis appears to be spitting directly into a strong wind. — Cleve Dheensaw, 2689 Capital Heights.

Thanks to All

My husband and I wish to thank all who came to help us when fire destroyed my studio at 4 a.m. on Nov. 28.

It is at times like this we realize the value of our public services. The kindness and consideration of the fire and police of Saanich, and the supporting ambulance in case of need, deserve the highest commendation. We are glad no one was injured.

Not least, either, thanks to all our wonderful friends and neighbors, to Hans who appeared at 5 a.m. in his anxiety for our safety; to Pat and Wayne Robertson and their two children, who helped so willingly for days to clear the remains; to Janet Rengrove and son who helped also, with Mark Jackson too.

To Rene Fairbrother who came early Tuesday to help and comfort me, to Elaine who did likewise.

To so many who phoned we are grateful, sincerely; and we are uplifted by such wonderful people and their loving concern. — Howard N. and Esme Davis, 4578 Hughes Road.

Another Kind Of Christmas?

By GEORGIA DULLEA
New York Times

For those who don't believe in Santa Claus, there is now an Alternative Santa Claus Movement. Its symbol: a skinny figure in a white beard, red cap and ratty overalls. Its slogan: "Kick the Commercial Christmas Habit." Its members: mostly church people, students and activists like 22-year-old Earl Pike, Co-ordinator of Elves in last season's Twin Cities Alternative Christmas Campaign.

Sporting long red underwear and waving banners saying "Give Yourself for Christmas," Pike, 30 other large "elves" and an Alternative Santa swept into a busy suburban shopping centre near Minneapolis one Sunday last year just before Christmas. There they sang songs, performed skits and pressed leaflets into shoppers' hands. Without getting preachy about it, they were trying to divert some of the seasonal splurge to the causes of peace and justice, especially hunger projects.

Pike said he thinks they succeeded: "The press loved it. The public loved it. Even the police seemed to like us. After all, how can you hate an elf?"

Such stunts are among the more radical ideas endorsed in the current Alternative Celebrations Catalogue, an annual publication of a Washington-based group called Alternatives. For five years now, Alternatives has been promoting new ways to observe holidays and family occasions from birthdays to funerals. Concerned that the original meaning of these special times has been "smothered in layers of wrapping paper, tinsel, chocolate candy and catered banquets," Alternatives has come up with "life-supporting and earth-supporting" suggestions for every red-letter day on the nation's calendar.

300 communities

Christmas is the biggest day, of course, in terms of the time, energy and money spent to make merry. Accordingly, Christmas serves as the focus of the group's first national Alternative Celebrations Campaign, now being conducted by college and church groups in 300 communities around the U.S.

How goes the campaign? That depends on where you look.

Things are fine in Cleveland. Charline Watts, whose husband is a minister, gives a glowing report of an Alternative Christmas crafts fair recently held there. Sponsored by 40 Cleveland-area churches, the fair raised $4,000 for craftsmen in Appalachia and developing nations. Mrs. Watts and her friends are also distributing copies of the Alternative catalogue to doctors' offices, hospitals and libraries. And she is also planting the seed in the minds of her five children. Their initial reaction to a Christmas without lavish presents: "Mother's a nut."

Meanwhile, a locally printed alternative to the Alternative Catalogue is being sold by a Lutheran church group in Tucson, Ariz. As one young parishioner, Lynn Anderson, explained: "The national catalogue is a bit radical for your average Southwestern Lutheran. I don't feel that way, but then I read Mother Earth News."

Mrs. Anderson, who gets funny looks when she wears her "Kick the Commercial Christmas Habit" button on the streets of Tucson, said that one national alternative to win local approval was the giving of coupon books of promised services instead of buying presents. "The idea is to give yourself, not a thing," she said. "Last year my husband gave me a coupon for ironing five shirts, which he hates to do. I gave him a coupon for an apple pie. I can't stand baking."

In Callicoon, N.Y., a piggy bank that was once a bleach bottle sits in the kitchen of Larry and Jane Orcutt. Every so often their sons, Steven, 12, and Douglas, 6, shake the bank to see if it contains enough money to buy a real pig. "I don't know," their mother was saying the other day. "A pig or a sheep costs $100, but we can surely buy a flock of chickens."

Like several other alternative-minded families interviewed, the Orcutts plan to donate part of the money usually spent on Christmas to Heifer Project International. This project, based on Little Rock, Ark., sends farm animals to poor families here and abroad. Its credo, "A helping hand, not a handout," seems compatible with the Alternatives philosophy, which stresses self-sufficiency. "It's truly a living gift," Mrs. Orcutt said, "because the farmer who gets the animal agrees to give the first-born to a neighbor."

Alternative Christmas plans were still sketchy at Trinity College in Deerfield, Ill., and no wonder. After celebrating Alternative Halloween and Alternative Thanksgiving, "we're just starting to tackle Christmas," reported Dr. Kirk Farnsworth, an assistant professor of psychology there.

Whatever form the campus celebration takes, he said, it will probably be marked by "a commitment to voluntary simplicity — not just cheap charity. Students today want to see themselves as consistent. They realize you can't gorge yourself on a huge meal and then sit around talking about world hunger."

Nobody was sitting around at the State University of California at Chico, Calif. At least nobody in Marilyn Adams's public relations class, which is in the midst of a "media blitz" to promote the campaign.

"What started as a public relations experiment for the class has become a personal commitment," Mrs. Adams said. "We're trying to impact 22 million people in the state of California."

Besides writing the usual news releases, the class is also speaking against Christmas commercialism before local groups, including chambers of commerce. After about 15 minutes of "hostility and confusion," Mrs. Adams said, it generally dawns on the audiences that the group is not out to abolish Christmas. "We're saying it's so important to the human spirit that it should not be commercialized. That's a hard message to get across."

Who needs this?

Still, Bob Kochtitzky has been trying exactly that since Christmas 1964, when someone gave him a battery-operated lint remover and he thought to himself "who needs this?" A former merchant in Jackson, Miss., Kochtitzky is a church activist and a founder of Alternatives. He also edits its annual catalogue of which 125,000 copies have been sold to date. (Copies of this year's edition are available for $5 postpaid from Alternatives Bookstore, 1924 East Third Street, Bloomington, Ind., 47401)

Among other things, the 250-page catalogue tells how to play Alternative Santa, who should not be confused with Scrooge. "We're not against gift-giving," Kochtitzky said. "Gift-giving is vital to mental health. We're against celebrations that have become mechanical and materialistic instead of responsive and life-affirming."

Detroit Getting Message That Less Car is Better

By WOLF VON ECKARDT
The Washington Post

Detroit is beginning to get the message.

Car manufacturers are wondering out loud whether their product really has to be loaded with chrome and bulges to have domestic sales appeal.

A few '79 models are already sporting a "European look." They show clean, functional design.

It has long become a platitude that, ever since they traded the Model T for built-in obsolescence, American car manufacturers "styled" their products rather than designed them. The fewer technical changes they make in the annual parade of "new" models, the more gimmicks and meaningless frills — like fake air scoops and merely ornamental grilles — they put on.

Lewis Mumford once said that the automobile is America's pampered mistress. Detroit stylists seem to believe that the American male likes his mistress done up like a tart. Only rich people were supposed to fancy good, chaste design, like Barcelona chairs and "continental" Lincolns.

The tart look never sold abroad, although foreigners tend to be just as infatuated with cars as we are. But American Motors, for instance, strips down its Jeep of splashy chrome and gaudy graphics before it is shipped to Europe. Germans, who purchase the most expensive Mercedes, wrote Del Coates in a recent issue of "Industrial Design" magazine, are so anxious not to appear ostentatious, that they will remove the identifying "450 SEL" from the trunk soon after delivery and either fill the holes or replace it with a less prestigious "230."

Coates, who teaches automotive design-engineering in Detroit, has revived the old-fshioned word "concinnity" to define "good design" of automobiles, or anything else, for that matter. The word unifies two disparate streams of esthetic thought, says Coates, to explain why the word is useful to him.

One is the Platonic notion that beauty is strictly an objective matter, that every object has some perfect, ideal form which, once discovered and expressed, will have universal appeal.

The other view is that beauty rests within the eyes of the beholder, that it is entirely subjective and personal, depending on thoughts, feelings, beliefs, ideals, social objectives and, of course, the Zeitgeist.

Concinnity, says Coates, is usually considered synonymous with "harmony" or "elegance" and occasionally, but inaccurately, with "beauty."

Clean, functional design In the European manner Showing up on new models

What it really means, according to Coates, is the same as the Latin "concinnitas," or "well put together." A Roman senator's speech was considered concinnuous if it not only sounded good to the ear because of its intonation, but also exalted the mind because of its logic.

Applying this definition to automobile design, Coates says "concinnity occurs when there is a close harmony of the car's objective form — the form that follows its function — and the subjective meanings associated with the car."

In other words, lines, shapes and forms meet the car's technical requirements without exaggeration, distortion, fakery or gimmicks, and are also designed in such a way that they meet the buyer's psychological expectations of what a good car ought to look like.

These psychological expectations change from one culture to another and from one time to another, because of different experiences and concerns.

The European expectation of a car, to venture a generalization, is mostly technical efficiency. Owning a car in Europe is in itself a symbol of wealth and status. What the German, Italian or Frenchman expects of the car is not that it dazzle his neighbors, but that it serve him as a reliable precision instrument. The designer's job is to reinforce this expectation.

In America, owning an automobile is no big deal. It is an essential life support. Americans, furthermore, used to take their technical superiority for granted. They wanted romance, novelty and luxury. Responding to this urge, the stylists tried to make their car appear to be a big deal, something lush and dazzling.

"As a result," says Coates, "American car designs are one step removed from reality. They are based on images of things, not on the things themselves. A highly placed automotive product planner once told me in all seriousness that 'the product planner's function is to find out what the consumer thinks he wants, and the designer's function is to make the consumer think he's getting what he thinks he wants.'"

European car designs, responding to functional needs, tend to provide an incentive for manufacturers to introduce functional improvements.

Coates emphasizes, however, that the difference is not between American and European designers, but between American and European marketing directors. "There is little difference in the way good designers think and act, regardless of where they happen to live...European design is nothing more than good design..."

A good design is beginning to infiltrate Detroit. The studios and even a few boardrooms are in a European mood, tending toward what Coates calls "objective concinnity."

What has happened is, first of all, that Americans are increasingly exposed to good European and Japanese car design and are beginning to appreciate it. With what the automobile industry calls "downsizing," the distinction between European and American cars is no longer predominantly one of size, but of design. But imports continue. In some California communities more than half the registered cars are imports.

Another factor is the growing demand for energy efficiency.

In large measure, European cars look the way they do because energy efficiency has always been of great importance in Europe. The price of gas has consistently been higher than in the United States.

Energy efficiency means lighter cars (which, contrary to popular belief, does not mean that they will be harder to handle and thus less safe than heavy cars). And it will mean a better understanding of aerodynamics and the need for simple and smooth surfaces.

The Cauliflower Crisis

russell baker

With gourmet cooking becoming America's biggest indoor sport, the mail is filled with requests for advice about the best way to pamper the innards. A New Jersey woman, for example, writes to ask, "When is it appropriate to serve cauliflower?"

Surprisingly, the correct answer eludes some of the finest gourmet cooks. Just last week at a dinner for eight I was shocked to see the hostess, an otherwise urbane operator of the Cuisinart, set cauliflower before the entire guest list.

Fortunately, I had brought my cauliflower-eating machine with me and so was able to leave a cleared plate. Other guests, not so fortunate, had no alternative but to eat the cauliflower themselves. The hostess simply did not know the appropriate occasion for serving cauliflower.

The rule is simple: Cauliflower should be served only to a husband one wishes to go away. There is no more effective way of poisoning his evening than serving him a generous mass of this white pulpy matter. Some chefs argue that brussels sprouts are equally effective for getting the message across, although divorce statistics do not bear them out.

Repeated servings of cauliflower, the figures indicate, result in seven out of ten husbands abandoning their wives and leaving them the house and car without contesting the divorce. Brussels sprouts, on the other hand, while they have been known to do the job, have also resulted in physical assault in a disturbing number of cases.

The answer is no. Of all the foods in the great kitchen of humanity, squash is the least interesting. This may be because of its name. Not long ago, at an elegant dinner for twelve, the chef served a boring mess of squash floating in a boring residue of juices. One of the guests screamed, "Squash! The most boring food on earth!"

"Show a little sympathy," urged his dinner companion. "Suppose you were named Squash. You'd be pretty dull, too, if only to avoid calling attention to yourself."

Generations of chefs have tried to do something interesting with squash, to no avail. They have nailed it to the door, and it was dull. They have thrown it at politicians. Dull. They have painted still-life portraits of it. Dull. They have tried beating the scullery maid with it. Dull. They have even tried eating it, reducing it to limp pulp between the molars. Boiled facial tissue is more interesting.

"Tell me about okra," writes a budding gourmet cook from Schenectady. Doesn't everybody know about okra? It is the ideal garnish for roasted galoshes, although some people prefer boiled carrots.

My judgment is that boiled carrots should be reserved for New England boiled dinners, which should be served only to people who have committed some unspeakable act and want to make atonement for it short of turning themselves in to the police.

Which brings us to cabbage. "Why did God make cabbage?" writes a woman from Iowa City. The correct answer is to make cole slaw and sauerkraut for cooking with ribs (add caraway seeds). Any other use of cabbage is a misdemeanor in most states, and Illinois has made the boiling of cabbage for human consumption a felony punishable by six months on frozen asparagus and canned spinach.

The question whether this is cruel and inhuman punishment is now before the Supreme Court. Liberals, who want to free the masses from the burden of boiled cabbage, fear the Illinois law will be overthrown, since the Court is now packed with appointees of President Nixon, a man who ate cottage cheese with ketchup.

B.C. Leading In FBDB Loans

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lending money in British Columbia is paying off for the Federal Business Development Bank (FBDB).

B.C. also leads the country in the number of borrowers who have paid their FBDB loans before they are due, says bank president Guy Lavigueur.

The FBDB is a federal Crown corporation whose basic function is to make available term loans, venture capital and give management counselling to persons who wish to set up a new business — either in manufacturing or in a service industry — and who can't get a loan from one of the private banks.

In many cases the FBDB borrowers have progressed to the point where they are accepted as good credit risks for loans from conventional private banks, possibly the banks that originally turned them down for loans.

B.C. businessmen currently repay $4 million a month to FBDB, compared with $3 million a month in Ontario.

In Ontario, with a population of 8.5 million, the FBDB has $406 million in loans committed; in B.C., with a population of 2.5 million, there is $460 million committed in loans.

The FBDB's interest rate for loans up to $50,000 is 12 per cent, and 12½ per cent for loans exceeding $50,000. The repayment period may range from two to 15 years.

The rates went up half a percentage point recently when the Bank of Canada increased its interest rate to 11½ per cent, from 10½ per cent.

Although the FBDB made a profit of $173 million last year, Lavigueur said: "Our object is not to make a profit, but to help small and medium-sized businesses. Ideally we should break even financially."

One of the FBDB's problems is making entrepeneurs aware of its existence and the services it offers.

"We would like to launch a campaign to accentuate our services, to let businessmen know what we have to offer," said Lavigueur.

"On the other hand, we don't want to take away business from the private banks.

"About 80 per cent of our loans are made to export-oriented businesses. I believe Canada is now in an excellent position to increase her exports now that the Canadian dollar is so low on world money markets."

The breakdown on the bank's loans to B.C. businesses is about 75 per cent in the manufacturing sector and 25 per cent in service industries.

The manufacturing sector includes the forest products industry, machinery manufacturing and light fabrication.

"We nurse ailing businesses as much as possible. In some cases we send in one of our business counsellors — usually a retired businessman with much experience — to assess the problems and suggest a way to change the ink from red to black on the balance sheet," Lavigueur said.

"Out of $1.6 billion worth of loans out at the moment, about $500 million are loaned to businesses we are nursing along."

B.C. Exports Jump 17.4%

VANCOUVER (CP) — Exports of British Columbia-produced goods totalled $5.2 billion during the first nine months of 1978, an increase of 17.4 per cent compared with the same period last year, the Employers' Council of B.C. said Wednesday.

However, in the same period Canadian exports increased 18.7 per cent, marking the first time in several years the province's export performance fell behind the national average. Dick Bryan, the council's economic research director, said in a news release.

"Rather than reflecting negatively on B.C., this shows the relatively greater effect of the devalued dollar on stimulating exports from central Canada," he said.

B.C's lumber exports rose 30 per cent to $1.8 billion during the nine-month period, largely because of price increases. The value of plywood exports increased 60 per cent in the period and volume rose by 50 per cent.

Volume of pulp exports increased by 20.8 per cent, while value increased only 3.2 per cent, reflecting low prices earlier this year.

Copper exports increased 6.5 per cent, but values remained unchanged. Metallurgical coal rose 16 per cent in value and 13 per cent in volume.

The council said exports to the United States rose 21.8 per cent and exports to Asia increased by 24.1 per cent.

Growing demand for newsprint and pulp mill strikes on the U.S. west coast contributed to a 17.2-per-cent rise in newsprint exports, Bryan said.

Brewer's Back In the Slammer

BURNABY (CP) — Teresa Brewer, the artful dodger of the Lower Mainland Regional Correctional Centre, was back in custody Wednesday after being picked up in a drug raid at a house in Vancouver. Brewer, 21, had been at large since Nov. 4 when she escaped from the prison for the ninth time.

"We hope to keep her for a while," a prison spokesman said. "But it's pretty hard when you can saw through the windows with a kitchen knife." Brewer was originally sentenced to two years for robbery, but her stay has been extended because of her repeated tendency to escape.

Exposure Fatal

LADYSMITH — A 58-year-old woman whose body was found in bushes near here Monday died of exposure, an RCMP spokesman said today. Beatrice Reid had been missing since Dec. 3. Her car was found Saturday in the Haslam Creek area about 45 kilomtres by logging road northwest of town. Two days later searchers found her body about five kilometres from the car. Police believe the car ran out of gas and the woman was attempting to walk for help when she succumbed to sub-freezing temperatures.

Ships Backed Up

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fires and a problem with new equipment at grain elevators have left 18 grain ships waiting in English Bay to move into the harbor to take on cargo, a spokesman for grain workers said Wednesday. Henry Kancks said there have been three elevator fires recently and a new computer operation at Saskatchewan Wheat pool installed to load boxcars faster has backfired.

Library Walkout

BURNABY (CP) — The Association of University and College Employees escalated its strike against Simon Fraser University Wednesday when 100 union employees walked out of the university's library. The employees rejected a lump sum increase of $400 for the first year of a two-year contract and a 4.5-per-cent wage increase for the second year. The union wants a minimum 7.5-per-cent wage increase in the second year.

10 Drug Charges

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Ten residents have been charged here with drug offenses following a four-month RCMP investigation of a morphine smuggling ring involving shipments of the drug through the mail from India. An RCMP spokesman said Wednesday $100,000 of the drug was sent through first class mail over a six-month period from an undisclosed source in India.

New Region Boss

SURREY (CP) — Ald. Allan Emmott of Burnaby was elected new chairman of the Greater Vancouver Regional District at a directors meeting Wednesday. Emmott succeeds Port Coquitlam Mayor Jack Campbell, who is stepping down to run for the Progressive Conservative party in the next federal election.

Members to Buy Golf Course?

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Members of the Metchosin Golf Club have more financial worries than how to meet next year's dues.

They are holding a special meeting tonight to discuss ways and means of buying the scenic nine-hole golf course from its present owner, Hugh Francis, who wants to sell and has offered it to the club on a first-refusal basis.

Neither Francis nor the club's president, Bill Pearson, is prepared to disclose the asking price but according to a club member it is in the region of $600,000.

The 45-acre tree-studded course undulates attractively alongside the Metchosin Road opposite the new entrance to Witty's Lagoon park. The total area of the property is 60 acres.

Pearson confirmed Wednesday the property is for sale, adding that Francis has "expressed a wish that the club members buy it if possible."

Pearson said one meeting has already been held. The purpose of tonight's meeting is to ascertain the feelings of the membership and discuss the feasibility of acquiring the property.

He said any decision to proceed would be complicated by a number of factors, including the prospects of obtaining provincial government funding and the probable necessity to amend the club's constitution.

"All I can say right now is that we're interested and we're getting together to see what has to be done," Pearson added.

Esquimalt Socred MLA Lyle Kahl said he has spoken to both parties and indicated his willingness to help in any way he can.

But he said he told them he would prefer to remain in the background so that the purchase proposal emerges as a community effort rather than an issue with political overtones.

Kahl indirectly confirmed that the asking price is around $600,000.

He said when club representatives inquired about the possibility of obtaining a provincial grant to cover one-third of the price, he stressed that revenue from fees "would have to take care of the $400,000 left remaining."

An important condition of receiving such a grant would be the requirement that the property be accessible to the public, the MLA noted.

"I think the community would benefit tremendously," he added.

"It's an excellent opportunity for this land to be made available to the public as a recreational area, yet still managed by a semi-private club."

Metchosin regional director Mac Tipton said although the price seems to be much too high he hopes the club members can find ways of buying the property.

"It's definitely an asset to the community," said Tipton, who can remember when the land was used for dairy farming.

As the property is within the Agricultural Land Reserve he doubts that it has any subdivision potential in the foreseeable future.

336 Donors

A blood clinic at HMCS Naden Tuesday attracted 336 donors, a Red Cross official said. A clinic is being held today at the Garth Homer Centre, 813 Darwin Rd., from 2:30 to 8.30 p.m.

TALKS GO WELL ON CIVIC CORE

Negotiations by the owners of the Town and Country shopping centre to acquire nearby property in the Saanich civic core area are now proceeding well after initial setbacks, a spokesman said Wednesday.

An official of the Edmonton-based Campeau Corporation said of the original dozen properties involved only about three or four owners have yet to come to terms.

He expressed optimism that the deals can be negotiated by mid-January so that the company can present its development plans to council.

Council has already indicated it wants the area between Seymour and Vernon redeveloped as a town centre under one developer, rather than tackled in a piecemeal way.

Campeau's plans include renovation of the existing centre and linking it to the new centre via an underground mall. The development would include new retail outlets, apartments, movie theatres and a hotel.

Handicap Funds Run Short

An appeal for donations to provide recreation for handicapped people in Greater Victoria has been made by Dr. Scott Wallace, former B.C. Conservative leader who is back in private practice in Victoria.

Wallace, a board member of the Victoria Society for the Recreation of Handicapped Persons, 520-620 View, said the society won't have any funds left by Friday.

"There are a lot of handicapped people in Greater Victoria, many on fixed incomes or welfare, who rely on the society for transportation to swimming pools and other recreational facilities," he said.

Wallace said in the next few months he will spend part of his time trying to get the society on a proper financial footing.

This will involve meeting Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis whose ministry is now responsible for recreation and lotteries.

"We'll try to get money from the proceeds of lotteries, which we have heard is for things like recreation and fitness," he said.

In the past, he said, there has been some confusion among provincial ministries as to which one is responsible for the society.

Chamber Variety Offered

Chamber works in a variety of styles illustrating the similarities and the differences between Italian Vivaldi and German-English Handel will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday at Craigdarroch Castle in the third concert in the Victoria Conservatory's Early Music series.

The program, which will also offer some unusual Christmas music, will include Vivaldi's popular Guitar Concerto in D played by Bryan Townsend and, as contrast, Handel's Concerto in D minor with James Kennedy featured as soloist on the baroque flute.

University of Victoria bassoonist Jesse Read will be heard in the brilliant Trio in A minor, by Vivaldi, as well as Handel's Chamber Trio in F Major. Read has just returned from a United States tour with Il Divertimento, a Basel-based group which plays classical music on original instruments.

Soprano soloist Selena James will be the featured artist in two seasonal works: a motet for two unaccompanied sopranos by Michel Pinot le Monteclair, and an anonymous Latin Christmas motet dating from about 1700. This was recently discovered in the convent of the Vroulines in Quebec and edited for performance by UVic's Dr. Erich Schwandt. Kennedy will also play a recently discovered recorder sonata by Handel.

AirWest: No Sale

AirWest Airlines Ltd. is not for sale, company president Norm Gold said Wednesday.

A bid was made in September by an unnamed group of B.C. and Alberta businessmen to purchase the airline. Gold refused to say if the offer had been withdrawn.

"Let's just say the airline is not under consideration for sale at this time."

Bids Called On Camsell

Tenders have been called to assess the extent of damage and determine how much equipment must be replaced on the Canadian Coast Guard icebreaker Camsell, Larry Slaght, the federal transport ministry's district manager, said Wednesday.

The Camsell received two gashes on her port side when she struck ice Sept. 10 in Queen Maude Gulf, east of Cambridge Bay.

Slaght said the ministry is still undecided how it will supply light stations and tend marine aids on the West Coast this winter, a job normally done by the Camsell.

may not have understood his options in reaching a settlement and was talking it over with a friend after lunch at the Red Lion when Gilchrist and Lennox overheard him say "... and I took (this kid) for his tires."

Pearson said Lubinich used a different method in calculating the loss figure — resorting to an average from the Blue, Red and Gold books used by second-hand car dealers.

He said any claimant has the option of appealing a settlement.

"No one is forced to accept any amount," he said.

Both Sandberg and Pearson were critical of press reports which they felt have tainted the operation here.

Sandberg said since the claims centre opened here three years ago, he has received only five complaints alleging employee wrongdoing.

One resulted last year in a conviction of an adjuster for opening phony claims and defrauding the corporation of $6,000.

Two resulted is dismissals and involved an adjuster and an estimater caught arranging "buy-backs" of cars involved in wrecks, an action that while not illegal, is against corporation policy.

Two allegations were deemed unfounded. One involved an employee who was accused of directing work to auto body shops for personal gain. Sandberg was unable to give details on the other. Both employees are still working for the corporation.

Pearson said the police are contacted whenever a criminal allegation is made; but Sandberg said police are only called in once the allegation has been substantiated by ICBC investigators.

Saanich police have only been asked to investigate one case here in the past three years — the case involving the adjuster who was convicted of opening phony claims.

chine-guns used by the United States Army.

Ten tons of weapons were seized from a warehouse in Bridgewater, N.S., and two truckloads were picked up at a Kirkland Lake, Ont., area mine where sales records also were seized.

Police reported Tuesday that 11 persons across Canada had been charged with conspiracy to traffic in prohibited weapons. On Wednesday, a Mississauga gun collector became the 12th person charged. Many others have been charged with possession.

Among the 11 arrested Tuesday were a former OPP officer and a captain of the Canadian Forces.

RCMP Insp. Dennis Farrell said records seized at the Kirkland Lake district mine showed police how extensive the trade was.

Weapons imported from Europe were sold in North America for up to $2,000 each, he said.

The investigation covered every province and territory in Canada except Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland, police said.

The 11 persons charged Tuesday are to appear Dec. 29 in district court in Haileybury, Ont., about 85 kilometres south of Kirkland Lake.

Capt. Michael Gagne, stationed in Valleyfield, Que., pleaded guilty in Quebec provincial court Wednesday to possession of a prohibited weapon before being taken to Haileybury to be charged with conspiracy.

Richard Tylor of St. Lazare, Que., pleaded not guilty in Valleyfield sessions court the same day to charges of possessing prohibited weapons worth more than $200. He was released on his own recognizance until his next court appearance Jan. 5.

Simpsons, Sears Merger Gets Cabinet Blessings

OTTAWA (CP) — Cabinet today gave its approval to the proposed merger of Simpsons Ltd. and Simpsons-Sears.

Industry Minister Jack Horner told reporters his cabinet colleagues had accepted the recommendation of the Foreign Investment Review Agency (FIRA) to let the two companies pursue their proposed merger. It was approved on grounds that it would benefit Canadians.

This means it will be up to Simpsons' shareholders to decide whether to permit the merger or to sell their shares to the Hudson's Bay Company which has made a competing offer.

See earlier story page 26.

Horner said the proposed merger, under study by FIRA since October, appears to offer significant benefits to the country. He said he will list them in a press release later today.

"The shareholders can do whatever they want now," Horner said. "Whatever happens after this will be determined by the marketplace.

"The Bay can still buy Simpsons or Sears can still buy Simpsons."

However, Don McGivern, president of The Bay said in an interview Wednesday his company will either change its offer for Simpsons or withdraw it altogether if the proposed Simpsons-Simpsons-Sears merger is allowed to go ahead.

Ald. Irene Block, jolted when Mayor Couvelier asked her to head the important finance committee, says she took the post 'in all humility'

If the voters of Saanich had embarked on a deliberate search for two women to represent them on council they could hardly have come up with a sharper contrast in opposites than Mary Casilio and Irene Block.

Words don't come easily to Casilio, whose simple, unassuming manner always makes her look uncomfortably out of place in the cut and thrust of council or committee debate.

But they flow in an articulate stream from Block, a woman of forthright opinions who has been known to put her point across with the occasional pithy expletive.

Casilio is a four-year council member, familiar with the complexities of municipal government; a tremendous worker, on first-name terms with everyone at the municipal hall from department heads down to the junior clerk.

Block is the novice, elated at her first-time win in last month's election but now slightly apprehensive as she approaches the two-year task ahead and grapples with a whole new set of challenges.

Each in own her own way is a force to be reckoned with: Casilio because of her overwhelming support by the electorate and her proven dedication to the job as the municipality's first ombudsman; Block because she is a person of obvious ability.

If they have one thing in common — as the following interviews show — it's a love of their home town and a desire to see the charming qualities of Saanich preserved.

BY PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Ald. Mary Casilio doesn't like the controversy on Saanich council, and says her strong suit in municipal politics is as a doer, not a talker

Front-Row Seat To Thick of Battle

ALD. Irene Block has a distinct advantage over most newcomers to civic office. She knows the ropes, or most of them.

For at least a year before she coasted easily to a council seat in last month's Saanich municipal election, she had attended all council and committee meetings.

No matter how boring the agenda she'd be there in her front-row seat, listening to the debates, frequently chipping in with an articulate contribution, occasionally letting out a sotto voce exclamation or a clearly audible sigh of frustration.

She's unlikely to get lost in the jungle of procedural protocol, bylaw amendments and all the rest.

Even so, she nearly flipped when Mayor Mel Couvelier phoned a few hours before Saanich council's inaugural meeting to say he was handing her one of the key jobs on council — the finance and legislative portfolio.

(In Greater Victoria, at least, it's almost unprecedented for a rookie alderman to be entrusted with responsibility for finance).

"You're whaaat?"

She says she tried to persuade Couvelier to give her any other committee task because she has no talent with or special interest in figures. She even offered to take on two chairmanships.

"I'm daunted by the prospect," she acknowledged. "Believe me, I take that committee in all humility."

But then a comforting thought struck her.

As secretary to the chairman of the anthropology department at the University of Victoria she's already responsible for monitoring a budget of around $250,000. So what's another $25 million, here or there?

In a press release last October announcing that she would be a candidate for council, 52-year-old Block described her occupations as "housewife, grandma and secretary."

Born in Liverpool, England, she came to Canada in 1955 and lived for many years in Calgary before moving to Victoria in 1971.

She and her husband, Jens, an office manager, live in the pastoral surroundings of the Blenkinsop Valley. It was largely the threat posed to that beauty by the development aspirations of certain valley landowners which started her on the trail of political involvement.

Block recalls other disturbing things were happening around the same time. Tiny Blenkinsop Lake was being "pumped dry," a lakeshore public right-of-way was in danger of being lost.

"All that was enough for me to say, dammit, this has got to stop," she said. "I got thoroughly mad."

Result: she formed the Saanich Greenbelt Association, whose early meetings were disrupted by members of an opposing group representing the major landowners in the valley.

She says she was called everything from a communist to fascist, and accused of trying to deprive property owners of their freedom.

"I used to come away feeling as if I'd been shredded."

On the group's behalf she began attending Saanich council and committee meetings to watch for any other such threats to Saanich's rural environment, and out of that arose her general interest in municipal affairs.

Block, who ran unsuccessfully for the Progressive Conservatives against Socred Hugh Curtis in Saanich-The Islands in 1975, has now resigned as president of the Saanich Greenbelt Association.

As political custodian of Saanich finances Block admits she doesn't have any magical solutions or instant answers to the problem of stretching tax dollars.

But she does feel there are some frills that could be cut. "I think a tremendous amount of money goes to sport and not enough to culture and other worthwhile community efforts."

For example, she deplores the fact that a group performing a valuable role in the community, such as Rape Relief, should have to come to council virtually begging for money.

SOME of her other observations:

— On Mayor Couvelier: "I like him as a person and I think he is doing a damn good job. He tries very hard and doesn't look at the political consequences of his actions."

— On her fellow-aldermen: "I think John Mika and Howard Sturrock consistently make the most sense but there's no one member of council I agree with all the time. I'm not going to be part of any group or clique on council. If the result is I'm a loner, that's tough."

— On the actions of Ald. Geoff Vantreight in the Panama Flats affair: "I think he's a hell of a nice guy. I don't believe he intended to pull a fast one on Saanich. I don't believe he intended to trespass or break any other bylaw. But I do believe he saw an opportunity to develop an area for agriculture and make a profit out of it. He's the sort of man who goes like a bull at a gate and doesn't stop to think."

She Spent $100 And Headed Polls

FOR four years Ald. Mary Casilio didn't bother to argue with the cynics who claimed she was merely the token woman on Saanich council.

She was told more than half seriously by several people, including acquaintances and municipal employees, that she'd been elected an alderman and then re-elected to a second term only because she was a woman and the voters wanted a woman on council.

If that reasoning were correct she might have found herself in trouble in last month's municipal election, when for the first time the candidates included another woman, Irene Block, who came equipped with some impressive qualifications.

Instead, Casilio topped the polls with more than 6,000 votes, a comfortable 600 ahead of colleague John Mika. And her campaign cost her all of $100, which was about $60 more than she had spent in 1976.

The result, she says, gave her a bigger personal thrill than almost anything else she can remember.

But Casilio readily agrees that her forte in public office is as a doer, rather than a talker.

An apolitical person who abhors controversy, she regards with distaste the frequent rifts and rumbles that develop along council's San Andreas fault of political division.

Born on her grandparents' 50-acre farm on Vancouver's Sea Island (now the site of the international airport), she spent her childhood years in Saanich and on the Saanich Peninsula, and has lived in the area ever since.

She attended a tiny two-room school in Brentwood that's now a boy scout hall, and remembers the fun of sledding down steep Verdier Avenue toward the water.

"We kids used to hitch a lift back up the hill by tying our ropes to the bumper of the bus."

Casilio says she decided to run for a council seat because "when you take a lot out of a place you should give something back."

At her first attempt she placed fifth in the four-candidate field, but the next time around she got smart and decided to cash in on her maiden name, Peden, which was well known in the community for the sports and athletic achievements of its various members.

(Casilio herself was no slouch in basketball, playing for the Victoria team which won the Canadian women's championship in 1949).

She identified herself in her 1974 campaign material as "Mary Casilio (Peden)," and was elected.

"People who were new to the area must have wondered about that, but the brackets seemed to make the difference," she said with a grin.

Casilio also believes her more recent popularity may have something to do with the way she has tackled her job as the municipality's first ombudsman.

When Mayor Mel Couvelier appointed her last year the duty was rather vaguely defined as that of red tape snipper, helping Saanich citizens who found themselves embroiled in building permit delays, drainage problems and so on.

But inevitably her position has evolved into a sort of all-embracing municipal matriarch, providing a handy shoulder to cry on, advice and help even when — as often happens — the complaint concerns some outside agency such as the human resources ministry.

Although the job lacks any statutory powers to override bureaucracy in getting things done, she has found that both inside and outside municipal hall the ombudsman title does carry some weight.

Casilio puts in about five hours a day, travelling up to 100 miles a week, investigating complaints. And that's aside from attending regular committee and council meetings.

"It's frustrating at times but I enjoy it," she says.

"It's a job. You can make it or destroy yourself."

A strong believer in the personal touch, she reckons that 80 per cent of the cases that come to her attention involve three or four visits.

IF you go to see the people and find out what they're complaining about, at least they know there is someone who is concerned about their problem.

"It may seem an unimportant matter to someone else but obviously to them it's important. So I try to look at it from their point of view."

This year in addition to her ombudsman's role Casilio heads the committees responsible for bylaw enforcement, parks and recreation and protective services.

In the past she has often voted against major development proposals — the Minnie Mountain project at Ten Mile Point was one of the most recent examples — but she denies that she's anti-development.

She says where development makes sense from a land-use point of view, is esthetically and environmentally compatible with the surrounding area and not opposed by the majority of area residents, she's prepared to support it.

PUBLICITY BEFORE SOLUTIONS

Ryan Raps Blencoe Over Letter

Ald. Larry Ryan today criticized one of his council colleagues for seeking publicity rather than worthwhile solutions to personnel problems at city hall.

Ryan attacked Ald. Robin Blencoe for a letter Blencoe had written expressing concern over the unconscious discrimination that takes place at city hall against women, handicapped people, middle aged workers and minority groups.

Blencoe said many city employees are discriminated against, not because of any written rules, but through traditional practices that have built up over the years.

With a new personnel director and a personnel officer soon to be hired by the city, Blencoe said it's a good time to review past policies.

Ryan said he agreed with Blencoe on the need for concern over discrimination, but then blasted Blencoe for writing a letter on the matter.

Blencoe's letter was addressed to Ryan but copies were simultaneously released to the media.

Ryan said the letter did nothing to improve the situation.

"It may be all right for getting his name in the paper but it's really just propaganda."

Ryan said he has been working to reduce bureaucracy at city hall but he opposes long letters that transmit information that could be exchanged in a personal conversation.

He said that Blencoe could have discussed the matter with him over a cup of coffee rather than sending a statement through the mail.

"You don't send a letter to the guy you're working right next to — or if you do then something's wrong," said Ryan.

"I'm concerned about the total personnel matter down there (at city hall) but until we get those positions filled I can't do much," said Ryan.

"I have considered these problems before . . . all these reforms are pending."

He said that there have been 40 applications so far for the vacant personnel director job and he expects to be looking at a short list soon.

Ryan added that he hoped the two vacancies could be filled from the inside.

"We can use our own resources — we don't have to go out of town for everything."

Former personnel director Terry FitzPatrick was fired on the recommendation of a Vancouver management consultant.

Another outside consulting firm has been hired to find possible replacements.

FitzPatrick is negotiating a settlement with the city.

He said in a recent interview that it could be sometime before either an agreement is reached or a decision is made to take the matter to court.

Ask the Times

Q. Can you tell me if the saying The Good Die First originated from a poem? J.R.B.

A. It's from the William Wordsworth poem Excursion. The lines read:

The good die first
And they whose hearts are dry as summer dust
Burn to the socket.

Q. When and where were the first music books printed.? J.B.

A. Rome appears to be the place where the first plainsong books with music were printed . . . in 1476. Printed part-music books were printed in Venice about 25 years later.

Q. How many symphony orchestras has London? Can you also tell me when the London Philharmonic orchestra was formed? W.R.T.

A. There are five principal symphony orchestras. The Philharmonic was founded in 1932 by Sir Thomas Beecham.

Businesses Protest Sally Ann Project

Victoria city hall this week received six letters, one containing a 28-name petition, opposing the development that would go on vacant lots fronting on Waddington Alley and Johnson Street.

The new structure would go immediately across the alley from the existing Salvation Army building at 521 Johnson.

Opponents say if the building is erected it will hinder pedestrian traffic in the alley which runs between Johnson and Yates. The narrow passage is a convenient link for pedestrians going between Bastion and Market Squares.

Stuart Stark, president of The Hallmark Society, said if the Salvation Army structure goes ahead it will eliminate the possibility of developing courtyards and walkways along Waddington Alley.

He said it would also restrict a link between two sections of Old Town.

The petition is against the project for much the same reason and calls the proposed building "oversized and out of character with the surrounding structures."

Heather Nicol of Nikomak Enterprises Ltd., which owns the nearby Colonial Metropole building, said her company is strongly against the proposal.

"The erection of a structure such as is planned by the Salvation Army frustrates the whole planned concept (of Old Town revitalization) and seems to be a foreign intrusion in a fragile heritage area," she wrote.

R.M. Lane of Carnaby St., a boutique near the Yates end of the alley, stated "I should be quite dismayed to find Waddington Alley serving mainly big trucks . . ."

Lane said that when tourists visiting the store ask what other parts of Old Town are worth seeing they are always directed to Market Square via the alley.

Others protesting the development are M.C. Williams, owner of the Colonial House at 551-5 Johnson; Frank Burger, manager of the Kings Hotel on Yates, and M.E. Hammersley of Heritage Properties Ltd.

The letters have been referred to the mayor and council for consideration.

A spokesman for the Salvation Army said the organization did not wish to comment and will simply await council's decision.

Language Barrier Blocks Holdup

A language barrier foiled an attempted armed holdup in Colwood Wednesday.

But Mrs. Suey-fun Low, 60, speaks only Chinese and couldn't understand what the youth wanted.

Police said the bandit fled.

A 16-year-old boy was arrested some hours later. He is to appear in family court next week charged with attempted robbery.

A police spokesman said store owner Johnny Yu had been lured to Victoria General Hospital by a caller who claimed Yu's son, George, 14, had broken his leg in an accident at school. The call proved to be a hoax.

Mrs. Low, Yu's mother-in-law, was minding the store while he was gone.

Meanwhile, a 32-year-old man was denied bail when he appeared before Judge Blake Allan Wednesday on a charge of robbing the A & B Grocery, 526 Head, of $86 Tuesday.

$100 Bursaries To Students

The Associated Vancouver Island Chambers of Commerce have awarded $100 bursaries to two Camosun College students.

Movel Telesford, who is enrolled in the university transfer program and Bill Greenhalgh, a student in the social services program, were the recipients.

Better Care RNs' Aim

The Registered Nurses Association of B.C. has called for provincial government action to ensure better care for residents of personal and intermediate care facilities.

In a brief to the government, the 21,000-member association asks for more professional supervision of care, improvements in criteria for care and administration of medications by trained personnel.

The association's recommendations stem from a study of B.C.'s Long-Term Care program, begun Jan. 1.

The nurses brief concludes that because the majority of those in the long-term care program are elderly there is need for the services of a skilled registered nurse.

The RNABC says it is its deep conviction that the practice of long-term nurses be of the same standard of competence as that of nurses in acute-care settings.

Because of the slowness of those on long-term care to improve and because, RNABC says, those employed in the program are paid low salaries, the facilities tend to attract less highly motivated personnel who are unable to find employment elsewhere.

The RNABC proposes:

— That staff in intermediate care facilities be supervised by persons with documentary evidence of professional health care training acceptable to a registered body or professional B.C. association;

— That existing staff-to-resident ratios be adjusted according to the complexity of care actually required;

— That residents' medications be administered by someone trained to perform this function;

— That designs for future personal and intermediate care facilities take into account the needs of disabled persons using wheelchairs and other appliances;

— That any government studies of the Long-Term Care Program include evaluation of staffing criteria.

Hearing Soon on Highlands

The battle over proposed zoning changes for the Highlands will go to public hearing within a few months, the Capital Region Board ruled Wednesday.

The proposal is to remove the 45-acre freeze, which has been in place since 1973, and replace it with a 10-acre lot size in some locations while allowing residential development in areas covered by the Willis Point and Langford fire departments.

Board chairman Murray Glazier said it's inevitable that the freeze be lifted.

"We can't continue with a freeze — we have to move to a complete land-use plan for the area."

Glazier said "a freeze is an interim situation which allows you to develop a plan. You shouldn't stay with a freeze for a long period of time because it treats all property the same, which it isn't."

The future holds a mix of zoning for the Highlands, which will likely include 45-acre minimum lots in some areas around Durrance Lake Park and Willis Point.

Ed Lubick, Langford's representative on the regional board, said the Highlands situation is a difficult problem for the board.

"We are between the devil and the deep blue sea," he said.

Last April Lubick began a series of meetings with residents and conducted a review of zoning in the area.

He said he has been swamped with briefs which are split into two even and distinct group — some for the rezoning, some calling for a retention of the 45-acre minimum lot size.

Lubick said some have argued that the current freeze is an infringement on their rights to do what they want with their land and others have claimed the tax associated with such large lots is a financial burden.

On the other hand some residents say that if the freeze is lifted the unique Highlands atmosphere will be destroyed by development.

Lubick said the board will have to work out a compromise.

Youth Parliament Opens Dec. 27

Student politicians from across B.C. will sit in the legislative chambers Dec. 27 to 31 for the 50th annual B.C. Youth Parliament (BCYP).

Eighty-five members of the student parliament will discuss provincial, national and international issues.

In previous year the topics have ranged from compulsory school bible reading to decriminalization of marijuana.

The Camp Phoenix Act is the major piece of legislation scheduled for debate. If approved, BCYP will run a camp for underpriviledged children on Shawnigan Lake in August for the fifth year in a row.

Other issues that will be debated are a hospital visitation program, soccer team sponsorship, crafts weekend in Kamloops and an activities program in a low income housing development.

Public Aid Asked on Welfare

Human Resources Minister Grace McCarthy today unveiled the first plank of her new approach to welfare in B.C. — more public involvement.

The newly-appointed minister said she is appealing to the people of B.C. to take a more active role in helping the government with some of its welfare problems — particularly the plight of children lost in the system.

McCarthy said the public expects too much from government, which can't continue paying for it all.

She said she knows there are B.C. families out there who are capable of taking deserted children into their homes.

She said she wants youngsters who now end up in group homes and institutions to be sheltered instead by individual families.

It would be a great challenge to a family but one that is not insurmountable.

"They are children deserted by their families; they need love, care and extra attention."

McCarthy said she is looking to "good families" to take on the challenge.

The minister also blamed a drop in moral standards for the drastic increase in the increase in teen-aged pregnancies.

The government cannot legislate morals, that's up to the people, she said.

The minister also promised to announce new welfare rates before Christmas.

She indicated earlier that single parents and families with children are the two categories likely to be in line for the largest increase.

A United Way report determined that welfare rates are about 35 to 40 per cent below the minimum cost of living and recommended they be brought up at least to the minimum level.

McCarthy said the report will be taken into consideration along with other data the ministry has received.

But the taxpayers' ability to pay also has to be taken into consideration.

"That's what I'm wrestling with at the present time."

She has said that blanket rate increases could give to some recepients less than they need. For example there is a tremendously strong case to be made for the single-parent family.

As well as appealing to the public to be more actively involved, she said she is sympathetic to those receiving social assistance and "I'm going to do all I can in order to alleviate some of the stress I know must be out there."

Sooke Fights Boundary Shift

Boundary revisions planned for Sooke School District by the education ministry are opposed by the school board.

Trustees have voted to tell the ministry they don't want the school district boundaries changed.

The ministry wants to revise boundaries in the Highlands area so students there can attend classes in Greater Victoria schools, which are closer than Sooke district schools.

Sooke trustees said they had no objections to some students attending school in Greater Victoria and has made transportation arrangements.

Plans to change the boundaries are going ahead, the board was told by a ministry official.

The plans originated with objections earlier this year by parents living in the Munns Road area who didn't want to send their children to Sooke schools because of the lengthy travelling time.

Trustee Brian Killip said a boundary change would cause a loss of revenue for Sooke district.

Killip said increased residential development in Highlands will result in more children attending Sooke schools and the tax base from that area would help pay for their education.

He said it is important for the district to preserve as much of the tax base as possible because the rise in assessments last year was smaller than Greater Victoria and Saanich school districts.

Christmas Theme At Gallery Tonight

The Art Gallery of Greater Victoria tonight offers a special pre-Christmas package.

On show will be the ceramics of award-winning Metchosin potter Robin Hopper and the two-millennia of Chinese ceramics, as well as the Vancouver Island invitational show and Expressionist woodcut prints from the permanent collection.

At 8 p.m. visitors can hear the senior voice students of the Victoria Conservatory of Music singing some of the traditional and international songs of Christmas.

Each year in November the students form a choral ensemble to perform Christmas music throughout Greater Victoria. This year they will visit hospitals and senior citizens' centres as well as branches of the Victoria Public Library.

The art gallery program will include familiar carols and Yuletide folk songs from around the world. Soloists are Roland Renton, tenor; Maureen Campbell, soprano; Gordon Thompson, bass; Stephen Bouey, baritone, and Frances Smith, mezzo soprano.

There is no charge other than the regular gallery admission, but donations to the Conservatory scholarship and bursary fund will be accepted.

Wings Get 'Gift List' Out Early

By Canadian Press

Detroit Red Wings have solved their Christmas gift problems — they're giving ties.

Sunday in Chicago they blew a sure victory and wound up in a 3-3 tie with the Black Hawks after giving up two goals in the last 3½ minutes.

Detroit did it again Wednesday night at Olympia Stadium, handing Atlanta a gift goal by Guy Chounard with one second left to give the Flames a 5-5 National Hockey League tie.

All Thompson had to do in the closing seconds was flip the puck along the boards, Kromm said, or hang on to it. Instead, with 20 seconds left he fired from behind his own blue line at the empty Atlanta net, missed, and the puck was brought back for a faceoff in the Detroit end.

Detroit's Dale McCourt lost the faceoff, the second key faceoff he failed to win late in the game.

In other NHL games, New York Rangers defeated Los Angeles Kings 8-7, Buffalo Sabres downed Chicago Black Hawks 6-2, Pittsburgh Penguins blanked St. Louis Blues 3-0, Montreal Canadiens edged Minnesota North Stars 3-2 and Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Vancouver Canucks, 5-1.

"All we have to do is buy them ties for Christmas," Kromm said. "That is two games we've had and given away. As far as I'm concerned, Chicago and this game are losses."

Thompson said he was "just trying to flip it to the boards to kill a few seconds. The minute I touched it I knew right away what happened. I got dumped on it pretty good, too. We will just have to get it back tomorrow."

Atlanta scored two goals in the first three minutes and then overcame a 5-3 deficit with two in the final two minutes.

"Maybe we should have just played the first few minutes and the last few minutes," said Flames coach Fred Creighton.

Goals by Tom Lysiak and Chouinard got Atlanta off to a quick 2-0 lead. Then the Red Wings erupted for four goals in 23 minutes to lead 4-2 after one period, with rookie Dan Bolduc, Reed Larson, Vaclav Nedomansky and Dennis Polonich connecting.

Atlanta's Willie Plett got the only goal of the second period.

Detroit took a 5-3 lead when Bolduc notched his second goal of the night and fourth in three games at 5:16 of the third period.

Bill Clement pulled the Flames within one with a goal at 18:01.

"River hockey at its best," was the way Rangers defenceman Ron Greschner, who had two goals — including the one that put the Rangers ahead for good — and two assists assessed the wide-open game against Los Angeles. "The scoring became an epidemic. I played games like that in junior hockey — 10-8, 11-10 — stuff like that."

"It was an unbelievable game," said New York coach Fred Shero. "We don't intend to, but we put on a heck of a show." (Summaries on page 21)

Stenmark Flashes Fine Form

MADONNA DI CAMPIGLIO, Italy (CP) — Swedish skiing star Ingmar Stenmark dominated the men's parallel slalom race in this Italian Alpine resort today, crushing all opposition on his way to victory.

The race counted in World Cup team standings but not in individual competition.

Stenmark, the defending World Cup champion, defeated Mauro Bernardi of Italy in the two runs for the final on the 22-metre Miramonti track, flagged by 15 gates.

Another Italian, Carlo Trojer, took third place by edging West German veteran Christian Neureuther in two tough runs.

No Canadians were entered in the event.

Drayton In Elite Marathon

MONTREAL (CP) — Jerome Drayton of Toronto will be Canada's top entrant next Aug. 25 in the inaugural Montreal international marathon, an elite competition to be held at the same time as the World Cup of track and field.

Dates for the second World Cup, the first having been held last year at Duesseldorf, West Germany, are Aug. 24-26, 1979, at the Olympic Stadium.

The German-born Drayton, 33, won the Fukuoka, Japan, marathon in 1969, 1975 and 1976 and the Boston marathon in 1977.

Eskimos Place Nine On CFL Dream Teams

By Canadian Press

Tony Gabriel, earlier named the outstanding player and the outstanding Canadian in the Canadian Football League, has been selected to the CFL all-star team for the sixth time in seven years.

While the list of awards collected by the Ottawa Rough Riders tight end continues to grow, the string has run out for Toronto Argonauts.

For the first time since 1965, the Argos did not place a player on the league all-star roster.

The Grey Cup champion Edmonton Eskimos dominate the 1978 team selected in voting by the Football Reporters of Canada and announced today.

The Eskimos have nine players on the all-star lineup, five on offence. Montreal Alouettes, 20-13 losers to the Eskimos in the Grey Cup, have five players among the all-stars while Ottawa and Calgary Stampeders have four each.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats, British Columbia Lions, Saskatchewan Roughriders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers had one each.

Besides the 10 repeaters from the 1977 all-star team, this year's selection also sees the return of defensive tackle John Helton of Calgary Stampeders.

Helton was a CFL all-star six years in a row from 1971 to 1976 but missed out last year.

Quarterback Tom Wilkinson, the outstanding offensive player in the Grey Cup game, leads the Edmonton selections. Joining him on the all-star offence are slotback Tom Scott, guard Bill Stevenson, punter Hank Ilesic and place kicker Dave Cutler.

Scott gained his second all-star berth at slotback although he was with Winnipeg when he won the recognition last season.

Winnipeg's lone representative this season is wide receiver Joe Poplawski, who led the league with 75 catches for 998 yards and was named rookie of the year.

The guards are Calgary's Harold Holton and Stevenson of the Eskimos.

Jim Coode of Ottawa, the league's outstanding offensive lineman of the year, joins Dan Yochum of Montreal at tackle. Yochum also picked up his fourth consecutive all-star berth.

Gabriel, who led the Eastern Conference with 67 catches for 1,070 yards this year, was previously named to CFL all-star teams in 1972, 1974, 1975, 1976 and 1977.

Fennell, named the CFL's outstanding defensive player and the top defensive player of the Grey Cup game, is joined by Edmonton team-mates Dan Kepley, Joe Hollimon and Gregg Butler.

BILLY SAYS:

Pitchers Balked At Reggie

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Martin said Wednesday his split with slugger Reggie Jackson last season developed after New York Yankee pitchers refused to pitch if Martin used Jackson in right field.

Martin's relations with Jackson were strained throughout 1977 and broke down this year when the manager relegated the slugger to designated-hitter status.

"One thing I don't think Reggie really understands," Martin said. "I don't like pitchers to come in my office every day and say 'I'm not going to pitch if he plays right field.' He never hears that side. He just worries about his side. But there are a lot of pitchers on the club who don't want to pitch with Reggie playing."

Asked which pitchers had complained about Jackson's fielding, Martin said: "The whole staff. Of course, he won't believe that."

"It isn't because Reggie is a bad outfielder. It's just that he has trouble judging the ball and picking it up. And there are a lot of pitchers who feel they'd have won a game if another outfielder was out there. They just don't want to pitch if he's out there."

Martin, appearing at the opening of his newest venture, a Manhattan western wear store, said he sees no problem to sitting out the 1979 baseball season and then returning as manager of the Yankees in 1980.

BASKETBALL COURT NO PLACE FOR POT

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Senior Jim Roberson, one of three Indiana University basketball players dismissed by coach Bobby Knight, said on Wednesday that the disciplinary action stemmed from the use of marijuana by team members.

It was the first open statement on the matter by the players, although various newspaper reports earlier quoted unnamed sources as saying marijuana was involved.

Roberson and sophomores Tommy Baker and Don Cox were dimissed from the team. Five other players, including the top two scorers, were placed on indefinite probation, although Knight said this will not affect their playing status.

Brandon's Streak Ends In Edmonton

Brandon Wheat Kings suffered their first loss in 49 Western Hockey League games Wednesday night dropping a 9-4 decision to Edmonton Oil Kings in a penalty-filled contest.

In Wednesday's other game, Gord Williams and Bob Black each scored twice to pace Lethbridge Broncos to an 8-3 win over the Pats in Regina.

In the Edmonton game, the Oil Kings scored nine power-play goals to hand Brandon its first loss in 29 games this season and 20 last season.

Ray Neufeld scored four goals to pace the Oil Kings, who led by period scores of 2-1 and 5-1. Steve Blue added three goals and singles were picked up by Larry McCargar and Mark Goodwin.

Steve Patrick, Laurie Boschman, Wes Coulson and Dave McDonald replied for the Wheat Kings, who outshot Edmonton, 30-29.

Brandon took 16 of 25 minor penalties, eight of 15 majors and seven of 13 misconducts. Of a total of 255 penalty minutes, 177 came at the 31-second mark of the third period when all players on the ice except the goaltenders began fighting.

In the Regina game, the Broncos received singles from Duane Sutter, Dave Snopek, Doug Morrison and Randy Ruff. Jim Pearson, Brian Varga and Doug Wickenheiser replied for the Pats, who trailed 5-2 after the second period following a 2-2 first-period tie.

Regina outshot Lethbridge 66-29 and took three of 13 minor penalties and two of four majors.

Meanwhile, Victoria Cougars, Seattle Breakers and New Westminster Bruins of the Western Division are planning a warm welcome for the touring Moscow Selects.

Selects play Seattle on Sunday, visit Bruins in Vancouver on Monday and face Cougars at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Memorial Arena.

Cougars will send forwards Gary Lupul, George Fritz and Mike Shields to Seattle. Lupul, along with Errol Rausse of Seattle and Keith Brown of Portland Winter Hawks, will also play for the Bruins.

Lupul, picked up by New Westminster for the world junior championship tournament in Sweden later this month, will play here Tuesday and leave Wednesday for Europe.

Breakers have also picked up goalkeeper Richard Martens and defenceman Larry Melnyk from the Bruins and defenceman Blake Wesley of the Hawks.

Martens will skip the Monday game and join Cougars on Tuesday along with Wesley, Dave Babych, Perry Turnbull and Mike Toal of Portland and Larry Dies of Seattle.

About 3,700 tickets have already been sold for the Tuesday game.

Swinger Gets Six Games

MONTREAL (CP) — Right winger Paul Holmgren of Philadelphia Flyers has been suspended for six games as a result of a match penalty he received for attempting to injure defenceman Carol Vadnais of the Rangers in a game last Sunday at New York, the National Hockey League office announced Wednesday.

NHL executive vice-president Brian O'Neill announced the suspension after a hearing attended by Holmgren, Flyers assistant coach Terry Crisp, game referee Bob Myers, supervisor of officials Frank Udvari, who attended the game, and referee-in-chief Scotty Morrison.

O'Neill heard testimony from those involved and viewed a film of the incident.

Holmgren struck Vadnais with his stick, the NHL office said, and the blow landed on Vadnais's helmet, dropping him to the ice. Vadnais, who did not suffer serious injury, was assessed a spearing major for his part in the altercation.

"Players do not have the licence to use their sticks against an opponent," O'Neill said in a statement. "Provocation does not create such a licence. If a player swings a stick to attempt to injure, he will lose the privilege of playing."

In addition to the suspension, Holmgren must pay an automatic $200 fine for his match penalty.

O'Neil also announced a two-game suspension to right-winger Tom Rowe of Washington Capitals for gross and game misconducts he received in a game against Los Angeles Kings.

The penalties were assessed after an altercation between Rowe and defenceman Darryl Edestrand. Rowe was given the gross misconduct for biting Edestrand on the hand and the game misconduct for shoving and pushing linesman Bob Luther.

Benching Starting Team Pays Off

By The Associated Press

Although Cowens, Jo Jo White, Billy Knight, Nate Archibald and Marvin Barnes were sitting on the bench at the outset of Wednesday night's National Basketball Association game against New Orleans, the Celtics beat the Jazz 102-96 behind the career-high 31 points of occasional starter Cedric Maxwell.

"I've been emphasizing defence since I took over as coach and the players I selected to start the game have been playing the best defence I've seen so far," said Cowens. "They earned the chance off what they showed in Houston Tuesday night. I didn't play well Tuesday, but (Dennis) Awtrey did. He deserved the chance."

In addition to Maxwell and Awtrey, the Celtics' starting lineup included Don Chaney, rookie Jeff Judkins and Chris Ford.

"I've had good success against them (the Jazz) before, so it didn't amaze me that my points came," said Maxwell.

In other games, Washington Bullets whipped San Diego Clippers 134-117, Philadelphia 76ers blitzed Kansas City Kings 120-100; San Antonio Spurs routed New York Knicks 139-109; Atlanta Hawks trounced Indiana Pacers 117-101, and Seattle SuperSonics beat Los Angeles Lakers 117-107.

Elvin Hayes scored a season-high 36 points and became just the 10th player in NBA history to reach the 20,000-point plateau and only the sixth player with more than 20,000 points and 10,000 rebounds. When he reached the milestone by sinking two free throws with 3:20 remaining in the third quarter, the crowd at the Capital Centre in Landover, Md. gave him a standing ovation.

Seattle raised its record to 20-6 and stretched its Pacific Division lead to three games over Los Angeles and idle Phoenix, rallying to beat the Lakers behind Fred Brown's 28 points and Dennis Johnson's 27. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 31 for the Lakers.

INTEREST HIGH IN OAK BAY EVENT

Christmas Classic For Tennis Buffs

max low

'Tis a long time, I know, since what we used to regard as the "tennis season" ended, yet on Saturday Oak Bay Recreation will kick off its second annual Christmas Tennis Classic.

Already it looks like being a wow and should, in fact, be one of the biggest tournaments ever staged on Vancouver Island.

It's a long time, too, since the fifth annual Victoria Times Public Parks Tennis tournament was held (it ran all last summer and wound up late in August) but Oak Bay's tennis co-ordinator Roger Skillings believes the great popularity of this weekend's tourney has a lot to do with the Times event.

"I'm really excited," Roger said after looking over the entries Wednesday. "The numbers are unbelievable and the Times tourney has done this. It created the interest and showed there can be good competition at the second and third levels."

That's certainly where the competitive spirit will show up in the Oak Bay event, which runs all next week and winds up on Christmas Eve. There are 42 entries in the men's "A" singles, 64 in the "B" singles and another 23 in the men's "C" event, which is designed for beginners. That's a grand total of 129 men's entered in singles events whereas only 70 entered this tourney last year when there was only one open level with consolation rounds.

Playing in the "B" men's doubles is obviously a lot more popular, too, with 40 pairs in that one compared with 23 teams in the men's "A" event.

Entries are a lot lower, as usual, in all the women's events but still with those and two levels of mixed play the overall entry is a whopping 286.

When a tourney staged amid the pre-Christmas bustle and in winter's icy throws outdraws just about all of those held beneath the glorious summer sun, it says a lot for the growth in popularity of indoor tennis.

With that in mind, I must tell you that finally the new covered tennis centre adjacent to the Cedar Hill Community Centre is open (again) and the four courts are available for booking (phone 595-7121).

Originally, the new centre opened on Saturday, Nov.18, but that run was shortlived.

Within two days, and before there was time to stage the official opening ceremonies the following Wednesday, storms took the power out and pfft went the bubble with it.

But Alan Colombo, supervisor of the new complex, wants to dispel the myth that the bubble "collapsed." It sank, he says. Slowly and gracefully it went down and down until finally it rested peacefully on the ground.

"When the power goes off like this for a long time, it takes seven or eight hours for the bubble to deflate, so there's no danger," he explains.

But it did pose a few problems for the Saanich tennis men desperately wanting to get their new venture off the ground, as it were. Keen to concentrate on seeing some tennis played inside the new centre, they postponed official opening ceremonies until some time in January and got the courts open for use last Sunday. And they've been pretty busy ever since.

What an unfortunate start for such a public-oriented venture. Let's hope it's smooth tennis from here on!

And finally, to end on a Christmassy note, if you need a tree to trim and would like to help junior tennis players out, I understand the Vancouver Island Tennis Association is selling trees on the parking lot on the corner of Fort Street and Foul Bay Road.

"The goal is to sell enough Christmas trees to support many youth tennis programs which are available to all youngsters on Vancouver Island," says VITA's junior development chairperson Leona Brice.

Certainly a worthwhile cause to support — for tennis players and fans, at least.

"I still have to give you a ticket."

Whyettes Romp

Yeta Dilalla hit for 34 points Wednesday night while leading Whyettes to a 98-24 Victoria Senior "B" Women's Basketball League romp over Esquimalt Rebels at Victoria High School.

Sandy Hussey led Esquimalt with 12 points.

Bouton Is Satisfied

ATLANTA (AP) — The Constitution says Jim Bouton, whose baseball career was as unpredictable as his knuckleball, has retired—again. Bouton, 39, who pitched six games for Atlanta Braves last season, is expected to return to his old job as sports anchorman at WCBS-TV in New York, replacing the recently-fired Ron Swoboda, a former major league outfielder with both New York Yankees and Mets and Montreal Expos.

Bouton won a pair of 1963 World Series games for the Yankees in his first career as a young fireballer, but he didn't quit when he lost his speed. He returned to the minors and developed a knuckleball before writing his first book, Ball Four, and leaving the game in 1970.

Bouton, 39, began his second career in the minors four years ago, pitching at Portland and Nashville before talking Braves owner Ted Turner into giving him a shot with the Braves' AA farm team in Savannah.

He was called up to the major-league Braves last summer and pitched 29 innings, allowing 25 hits and 16 earned runs while striking out 10. His record was 1-3 with a 4.97 earned-run average.

Other teams ridiculed his slow pitches—and their own inability to hit them.

"It was the most satisfying summer of my life," The Constitution quotes Bouton as saying in a copyright story.

COMPARE... AND YOU WON'T COMPROMISE
Check up on Michelin. Go ahead.
Compare their prices, at our store, to somebody else's tires down the street. Yes, you will find cheaper winter tires bearing the other brand name. Just about everybody except Michelin makes lower-level tires, intended for low-level pricing.
But if you compare top-level competing tires—the ones that try to be in Michelin's class—you'll find the price difference small, or not there at all. And that's when you'll remember Michelin quality...Michelin traction...Michelin reliability.
And then you'll come back to us. We'll be waiting, with open doors.

Forest Gains Cup Semis

LONDON (Reuter) — Nottingham Forest, the holders, surged into the semifinals of the English Football League Cup with a 3-1 victory Wednesday night over Brighton.

Forest, which last weekend suffered its first league defeat in 43 matches when beaten 2-0 by Liverpool, bounced back with a sparkling second-half display against Brighton.

Second Division Brighton suggested it might make a fight of it when four minutes after the interval Peter Ward equalized John Mcgovern's first-half goal for Forest.

But Ward's goal merely goaded Forest into action and it dominated the remainder of the match with John Robertson and Gary Birtles scoring the deciding goals.

In other quarter-finals, Leeds United of the First Division crushed Second Division Luton, 4-1, while Stoke and Watford of the Second and Third divisions respectively, drew 0-0.

McHargue, Barerra Tops

NEW YORK (AP) — Darrel McHargue, thoroughbred racing's second $6 million jockey, and Laz Barerra, its first $3 million trainer, are winners of Eclipse Awards for outstanding performances in 1978.

Also honored Wednesday in voting by members of the National Turf Writers Association, employees of the Daily Racing Form and racing secretaries of Thoroughbred Racing Associations member tracks were Ronnie Franklin, apprentice jockey, and the Harbor View Farm of Louis Wolfson as top owner and top breeder.

The two Eclipse Awards to Wolfson and his wife Patrice brought to five the Harbor View haul. In awards announced Tuesday, Harbor View's Affirmed was voted Horse of the Year and three-year-old champion and Harbor View's It's In the Air was named co-two-year-old filly champion with Candy Eclair.

McHargue, a 24-year-old native of Oklahoma City who does most of his riding in California, has ridden more than 350 winners this year. He broke the $6 million barrier in December at Aqueduct aboard Champagne Chappy. The first to hit the $6 million mark was Steve Cauthen, whose mounts earned $6,151,750 last year.

McHargue rode such top horses in 1978 as the two-year-old colt General Assembly, two-year-old filly Terlingua, three-year-old colt Radar Ahead, three-year-old filly Grenzen and four-year-old filly Drama Critic.

Barrera, the Cuban native who was named North America's top trainer for an unprecendented third straight year, trained Harbor View's Affirmed, It's In the Air and George A. Pope Jr.'s J.O. Tobin, who shared the sprint championship with Dr. Patches. This trio helped Barrera become the biggest money-winning trainer ever, breaking the mark of $2,976,196 set by Jack Van Berg in 1976.

Franklin rode more than 225 winners and his mounts earned over $1.4 million.

Hill, Frohlich Week's Best

Different circumstances yielded the same result as Merleen Hill and Joe Frohlich captured tenpin awards during the 10th week of competition in the 16th annual Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest.

Merleen topped the women's division with a powerful finish for a 195-179-222 — 594 series in the Friday Niters League.

Joe, on the other hand, collected men's laurels with a strong-starting 267-180-198 — 645 series in the Wednesday Mixed League.

Both series were rolled at Mayfair Lanes.

Fisher Blasts Renwick

GORDON RENWICK
. . . unco-operative?

OTTAWA (CP) — Another voice has been added to the furious debate between Hockey Canada and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association over international negotiation rights that has threatened next year's Canada Cup.

Former Hockey Canada head Doug Fisher Wednesday blasted CAHA president Gordon Renwick for creating the distrust and lack of co-operation between the groups over the last 18 months.

"Where occasionally before one could count on some co-operation and trust in the relationship, that has disappeared since Renwick became CAHA president (in May, 1977)."

Alan Eagleson, Hockey Canada negotiator, has threatened to cancel the 1979 Canada Cup, unless the two sides can come to terms. Also, Canadian involvement in other events, including the 1981 and 1982 world championships and the 1980 Olympics, are in jeopardy, Eagleson has said.

The CAHA is a member of Hockey Canada, along with the National Hockey League, the World Hockey Association and other government and sports groups, including the NHL Players' Association, of which Eagleson is executive-director.

The CAHA remains the Canadian representative in the International Ice Hockey Federation, and any international hockey events involving Canada must be sanctioned by it.

Fisher, who resigned in August after six years as chairman of the board, blamed Renwick for reneging on several agreements with Hockey Canada, including a recent June 27 pact that seemed to settle the dispute. It gave Hockey Canada exclusive negotiating rights for any games involving professional players, with the CAHA responsible for all amateur involvements overseas.

Renwick has argued that the agreement was tentative and was rejected by the CAHA board in October. He said Tuesday the CAHA will honor that agreement if it retained veto rights over exhibition games involving professionals.

The CAHA wanted to keep control over these games because the World Hockey Association has repeatedly signed underage juniors without reimbursing the owners for development fees.

Roughhouse Features All-Blacks Rugby Win

BRIDGEND, Wales (Reuter) — New Zealand All Blacks registered the 16th win of their British Rugby Union tour Wednesday when they beat Bridgend 17-6 in an ill-tempered match.

There was an ugly incident right at the start of the game when Bridgend's captain, J.P.R. Williams, was led off the field after being trampled on in a ruck. From then on fist fights became the order of the day and referee Laurie Prideaux was constantly forced to read the riot act.

Fullback Richard Wilson contributed three penalties to the All Blacks victory while their other eight points came from tries by Mark Taylor and Graham Mourie. Steve Fenwick kicked two first-half penalties for Bridgend to restrict the New Zealanders to a 10-6 interval lead.

Crooks Fall for Fence

EDMONTON (CP) — A secret police operation featuring an undercover United States detective, two rookie policemen and a bogus pinball arcade has led to recovery here of more than $125,000 in stolen property.

During the four-month operation, which ended with warrants issued for 24 persons, the storefront arcade "fence" quickly gained a reputation among Edmonton's criminal element.

The central figure in operation was detective Moses Ector of Atlanta, Ga.

He bought vast amounts of property stolen during break-ins at homes in the Edmonton area. The goods were quickly stored in a city warehouse because it was feared regular police who were unaware of the undercover operation might try to close the storefront arcade, operated by the rookie policemen.

Dressed in sunglasses, floppy hat and mod clothes, Ector frequented known criminal hangouts and made it known he was in the market for stolen goods.

"Most people got the idea I was Mafia;" said Ector. "Crooks are always expecting the worst."

He handed out business cards under the name T. J. McGreevy Enterprises, a division of CAC. Ector would say CAC stood for Canadian-American Co-operation, but privately it was also known as Catch a Crook.

T. J. McGreevy is deputy director of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation. The idea for the operation came during discussions between Edmonton Police Chief Robert Lunney and McGreevy, leading to the borrowing of Ector.

Police believe they received property from 50 house break-ins. Transactions at the arcade were tape-recorded and videotaped. More than 75 per cent of the property has been traced to owners.

There were some unexpected bonuses in the buying of stolen property, said S.Sgt. John Underhill.

"When some of the fellows brought in a mink they'd paid $300 for, a double diamond ring fell out of the cuff. It was appraised at $7,500 value."

A white, 1977 Pontiac Parisienne was sold to Ector for $1,000, a fraction of its true value. The loot also included 14 television sets, microwave ovens, cameras, stereo components, motorcycles and coin collections.

Pensions, Seniors' Benefits Up Jan. 1

OTTAWA (CP) — Increases in the Canada Pension Plan and other old-age social security benefits effective in January were announced Wednesday by Welfare Minister Monique Begin.

The maximum retirement pension will be $218.06 a month. The maximum disability pension will be $216.06 a month.

The maximum monthly surviving spouse's pension will be $134.28 for persons under age 65 and $130.84 for spouses 65 and older.

The maximum guaranteed income supplement, paid to poor pensioners on an income-tested scale, will rise to $137.28 from $115.55 for single persons and for married persons whose husband or wife is not a pensioner or receiving a spouse's allowance.

The maximum guaranteed income supplement for a married couple, both pensioners, will rise to $114.15 from $102.61 each.

And the spouse's allowance will rise to $281.36 from $267.35. The allowance is paid to spouses, mostly women, between age 60 and 65 who are married to pensioners.

Postal Union Incensed

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Union of Postal Workers says suspensions and firing of union members because of the October postal strike are not valid under terms of a collective agreement signed in 1975 and that a massive defence will begin on the members' behalf.

John Potts, the union's region grievance officer, said Wednesday that under the agreement with the post office, reports cannot be placed in employees' files unless copies of the reports are sent to the employees within 10 days of the alleged infractions.

The postmaster-general's office has suspended 501 union members in Ontario and regional supervisors have recommended that at least 11 members be fired. About 800 Ontario members have been reprimanded.

Post office officials said in Ottawa that about 1,000 union members were advised in writing, within 10 days of the alleged incidents, that their actions during the strike from Oct. 17 to Oct. 26 were under review.

Potts said such a procedure is not accepted by adjudicators when hearing union grievences.

"The post office takes the view that you are guilty until proven innocent," Potts said. "Every adjudicator rules that management knows that you can't hold a charge over a man's head for six months.

"You can't send someone a letter saying you are thinking of prosecution. That's double jeopardy. Ten days is long enough to investigate and lay charges."

A post office official said, however, that such action "has been sufficient in the past."

"The union has used this approach for a number of years," the official said. He cited a 1975 case in which the post office took disciplinary action against about 100 Montreal postal workers.

"Some (suspensions) were reduced from three weeks to two weeks, some from two days to one day," the official said.

The adjudicator's decision was made in 1977.

Potts, however, said that of the 15 cases in which employees were fired, only three were upheld by the adjudicator. The other 12 were reinstated, with full back pay. Most of the other penalties were reduced, he said.

"We won 89 per cent of the cases. It cost the post office $704,000 to reimburse those employees."

Meanwhile, other union oficials were counting the letters of reprimand, suspension or dismissal received by its members. A national total was to be announced today in Ottawa.

The union said more than 200 members in Ottawa had received letters of reprimand, 175 had been suspended and there were recommendations for five firings.

Letters of reprimand had been received by 125 members in Windsor, 116 in London, 78 in Toronto and 68 in Thunder Bay. The London local reported 155 suspensions, Kitchener, 127, and Toronto, 14.

The Toronto local also reported six recommendations for dismissal.

Ottawa Sifts Bay Offer

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Hudson's Bay Co. has put its hopes for a larger presence in Eastern Canada in the hands of the federal cabinet.

Donald S. McGiverin, company president and chief executive officer, said Wednesday that Ottawa will decide whether its plans to take over Simpsons Ltd. will be allowed to proceed.

Hudson's Bay made an offer to Simpsons shareholders last month to take over the company for $388 million in cash and shares.

The offer represents a bid by The Bay, most of whose stores are in Western Canada and Ontario, to enhance its position in eastern markets now served by Simpsons.

In an effort to ward off the takeover, Simpsons moved Tuesday to sweeten a proposed merger with Simpsons-Sears Ltd., the department store chain half-owned by Sears, Roebuck and Co. of Chicago.

McGiverin told reporters The Bay's offer would retain Canadian control of Simpsons, and he said he doesn't see how Ottawa could approve the merger plans of the company's rivals.

"I would find it incredible if the federal cabinet came to the conclusion that made a merger of Simpsons and Simpsons-Sears possible."

However, he added: "If the federal cabinet is sold on the Simpsons and Simpsons-Sears merger, that blows us out of the water."

Simpsons and Simpsons-Sears have asked the federal government to decide by Friday whether their latest merger proposal is permissible under the Foreign Investment Review Act.

McGiverin said that if the merger is approved, The Bay would be forced to withdraw its offer and Simpsons shareholders would be left with no other choice in the matter.

The Bay has offered Simpsons shareholders the equivalent of $8.30 a share based on latest market prices. McGiverin said a preliminary analysis of the latest merger proposal would give Simpsons shareholders only $7.60 a share.

McGiverin also said The Bay's offer is superior in terms of future dividends to shareholders and proposed new investment, jobs and merchandise purchases in Canada.

A special meeting of company shareholders was held Wednesday to authorize the capital needed to proceed with the takeover. No effort was made at the meeting to increase The Bay's offer in hopes of making it more attractive to Simpsons stockholders.

The Bay proposes to operate Simpsons as an independent division under the Simpsons name, to continue competition between stores in areas now served by both companies and to build 10 new Simpsons stores in the next five years.

Andras Board Raked

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's new economic development board was damned Wednesday by opposition critics as a smokescreen for inactivity and a political gimmick.

The condemnations came from Conservative leader Joe Clark and Ed Broadbent, New Democratic Party leader, after Prime Minister Trudeau delivered a dull 20-minute speech in the Commons that shed little light on the board's responsibilities.

Trudeau, newly returned from a trip to Europe, said in opening debate on the cabinet resolution setting up the board that the nine-member cabinet committee would make a major contribution in meeting economic challenges and setting the foundation for a "decade of prosperity."

But as Robert Andras—the president of the board—sat quietly, Clark said the proposal would sow confusion.

Andras' official title is minister of state for economic development.

The changes were only meant to fool the public. Facing an election next spring, the government was trying to pretend it was serious about the economy.

Trudeau, speaking before only 60 MPs in the 264-seat House, said in a rare Commons speech that it was time now to increase the effectiveness of government economic measures, minimize red tape and foster cooperation among labor, business and the federal and provincial governments.

Broadbent said Trudeau's speech was an admission of the failure of the government over the last 10 years. Since the prime minister took over in 1968, unemployment and tripled, inflation had doubled, redistribution of income had worsened and foreign ownership had increased, he said.

Deportee Laughing But Smile Bitter

EDMONTON (CP) — Bill Webster will soon be deported from Canada, but he will be laughing as he goes.

The day after Webster learned he was to be deported, the 27-year-old Australian saw his picture in a full-page newspaper advertisement.

Surrounded by persons of every origin, he was in the advertisement promoting Human Rights Day on behalf of the Alberta Human Rights Commission. "Let's Bring Together the Creative Energies and Ideas of Every Albertan," read the slogan.

"I saw this and I had to laugh," Webster said. "I'm going to send it to my immigration officer. The whole idea of the ad is that this country is giving people a break."

He was deported because he left the job for which he'd received his employment authorization and moved to another.

Cinderella Tour for Canada's New First Lady

OTTAWA (CP) — Lily Schreyer, wife of the Governor-General designate, said today she felt a bit like Cinderella during the first tour of her new home — Rideau Hall.

"We'll have to redecorate some of the bedrooms," Mrs. Schreyer told reporters before returning to Winnipeg after a two-day stay in Ottawa.

The Governor-General's private apartment within the rambling Rideau Hall contains only a bedroom and sitting room and is, therefore, not able to accommodate the Schreyers' four children.

The Schreyers were the guests of retiring Gov.-Gen. Jules Leger and his wife, Gaby, Tuesday night and received their first tour of the official residence of the Queen's representative.

The former New Democratic Party premier of Manitoba said the Legers gave them "useful and practical" advice about the duties they are to assume next month.

"They are such warm people; their wisdom of the country is so great; it's only a pity they didn't have more time."

In an interview Tuesday, Gov.-Gen. Leger said he had five words of advice for his successor — "do your thing with prudence."

Schreyer, who is 23 years younger than the 65-year-old Leger, will likely change the image people have of the Governor-General, Leger said.

The Devil Can Give Evidence In Court

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Supreme Court has ruled that a Satanist who refuses to swear an oath on the Bible can still testify at a trial.

In a ruling released Wednesday, the court said mental incompetence or insanity disqualifies a potential witness from giving evidence but that the Canada Evidence Act allows persons with unusual religious beliefs to affirm, rather than swear, they will tell the truth.

"Moral depravity does not render a witness incompetent to testify," the court said. "Likewise, a disposition to lie does not disqualify a person from testifying."

The court was ruling on an appeal by the Crown in a case in which Provincial Judge John Clendenning acquitted a man of possession of stolen property after disqualifying a Crown witness, who said he was a Satanist, from giving evidence.

AHOP Debt Trap Cited

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative Jean Pigott said Wednesday the federal government is encouraging people to buy homes they can't afford and warned that many will have their dreams shattered when they find they can't meet the payments.

Pigott, party housing critic, said the default rate on the federal Assisted Home Ownership Progam (AHOP) — started in 1973 to help low- and middle-income families buy homes — is running at close to 10 per cent.

"The default rate of almost 10 per cent is forcing many families to simply mail in the keys," she said.

Urban Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet said Pigott's figures are exaggerated and that the actual default rate is less than five per cent.But even if the default rate reached 10 per cent, the AHOP program would still be considered a success.

About 144,000 units, mostly high-rise condominiums and row housing, have been constructed under the program.

Pigott said about 53,000 of the units remain vacant and unsold, quoting an unpublished report of the Vancouver-based Fraser Institute.

Pigott said the government should not be pushing ahead with its new graduated payment mortgage program — which is to replace AHOP — until it examines the reasons for defaults under AHOP.

Amendments to the National Housing Act introduced in the Commons Tuesday provide for a "quick settlement" to private lenders faced with defaults on the graduated payment mortgages.

The private lenders would be paid out of the federal mortgage insurance fund, which now stands at more than $600 million. CMHC would take over title to the property.

Conventional mortgages have a level payment throughout the payback period. Under the graduated payment mortgage, payments would be low in the initial years and increase at five per cent a year until about the 11th year when they would level out.

This is designed to let payments rise in line with salaries. The lower initial payments would lower the income requirements of the homebuyer.

But Pigott said the government is moving too quickly with the new mortgage.

Ouellet said he expects there will be defaults under the graduated payment mortgage. But even a default rate of 15 per cent would not be unacceptable.

In some cases, the government might take over ownership of the housing unit and let the family stay on paying rent, he added.

A Light-Hearted View from the Top

LEGER . . . not always dull and stuffy

By PAUL GESSELL
Canadian Press

OTTAWA — Gov.-Gen. Jules Leger hopes to write a book in his forthcoming retirement to tell Canadians that life at Rideau Hall is not always a dull, stuffy affair.

But the former journalist and diplomat, who brought his own special sense of humor to the official residence of the Queen's representative, is meeting some resistance from his wife, Gaby.

"I now want to convince her to write a book with me on the lighter side of life at Rideau Hall, but she is not yet convinced," the Governor-General said in a farewell interview. "But I am very stubborn."

Quips and one-liners were the trademark of Gov.-Gen. Leger during his five-year stay at Rideau Hall. He was known to break up more than one official state dinner by disarmingly candid remarks.

And true to his non-political role, each remark about "my boss", Prime Minister Trudeau, was followed by one aimed at Progressive Conservative Leader Joe Clark.

The book, however, will not be his first project next month when "the new tenant" — Ed Schreyer — assumes the highest post in the country and Gov.-Gen. Leger begins what he terms a period of unemployment.

First, there will be a period of rest in the Leger's Ottawa condominium from the rigors of travelling, speech-making and entertaining royalty.

"I am behind in my dialogue with God," the 65-year-old Governor-General says. "I hope he will reply to me from time to time."

Gov.-Gen. Leger has five words of advice for his successor, the former New Democratic Party premier of Manitoba: "Do your thing with prudence."

It is a motto he himself has practised since leaving the foreign service and important ambassadorial appointments to France and Italy to become Governor-General in January, 1974.

The native of the tiny Quebec village of St. Anicet did the job the way he saw fit but never rocked the boat.

"I opened the doors to Rideau Hall to Canadian artists, for chamber music," he says, alternating between French and English.

"I forced the government to buy Canadian paintings. I think the house is more human than before and more open than before, more Canadian."

One such painting is a portrait by the famous Quebec artist Jean-Paul Lemieux of the Governor-General's brother, Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, the Roman Catholic archbishop of Montreal who went to work with the poor and lepers in Africa.

In the classical sense, there is no Canadian culture, Gov.-Gen. Leger says.

"But in the contemporary sense, yes, in that we have an expression which is Canadian, French, English, American and this impact on the country is so great, it is a culture.

"For example, I pray in French; I work in English part of the time and I dream about things American. This is our culture today and more so in the future."

The current crisis between English- and French-Canadians "could be a long one" but may lead, in the long run, to a better understanding between the two founding ethnic groups, he says.

"I think that Canada is going through a social revolution but time is with us and we can meet the crisis."

Gov.-Gen. Leger sees the role of the Queen's representative evolving along with society. It currently has more responsibilities than at Confederation.

"The role of the Governor-General is changing all the time and the changes can be more rapid depending on the changes the government wishes to make to the Canadian constitution.

"For me, the role of the Governor-General and the role of the Queen can be complementary for many years to come, maybe for a generation. After that, I cannot say."

The real powers of the Governor-General are exercised only in times of emergency, such as when a minority government collapses. The Governor-General may then appoint a prime minister.

The influence a Governor-General has upon the country is heavily determined by the temperament of the person holding that office. Gov.-Gen. Leger illustrates his point by comparing the 42-year-old Schreyer with himself.

Schreyer, who received his first official tour of Rideau Hall this week, is younger, a political idealist and a socialist, Leger notes.

"I'm old, not socialist, well, maybe a bit, and, therefore, you realize the contrast between the two men is great and, therefore, you have to conclude the role of the Governor-General is changing today in this house."

Gov.-Gen. Leger says he believes part of his job is to speak on important social and cultural issues with which he is familiar. But prudence is again the key.

"For example, my successor can speak of the West with great authority. This is good for the country."

Being a former journalist at the Ottawa French-language daily newspaper, Le Droit, Gov.-Gen. Leger occasionally challenged reporters to ponder the impact of their work.

News organizations should take part in a search for "the path of light and help others to find it," he told the annual dinner of The Canadian Press in Toronto in May, 1974.

A month later, Gov.-Gen. Leger met the toughest challenge of his own life when he suffered a serious stroke at Sherbrooke, Que.

The resulting speech handicap meant his wife, the daughter of a Montreal motor executive whom he met while attending the Sorbonne in Paris, frequently became his public mouthpiece.

"Mme. Leger met with gusto the challenge at Rideau Hall and she helped me greatly in my difficulty after my attack," Gov.-Gen. Leger reminisces. "And I am very fond of her."

Here's Stew that Can be Topped

(Makes 2 casseroles, six servings each)

Stew: (for 2 casseroles)
- 2 lb. beef for stew, cut in 1-inch cubes
- 2 cups chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons shortening
- 2 19-oz. cans tomatoes, undrained
- 1 bay leaf
- 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
- 2½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 2 10-oz. packets peas and carrots

Topping (for 1 casserole)
- 1¾ cups buttermilk pancake mix
- 1 cup milk
- 1 egg
- 1 tablespoon liquid or melted shortening

For stew, brown meat and onions in shortening in 4-quart Dutch oven. Add tomatoes, bay leaf, Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper. Cover and simmer 1½ hours, stirring occasionally. Add peas and carrots. Bring to simmering point. Line a 10-inch low casserole with foil for freezing. Remove bay leaf and divide stew into freezer-type casserole and a 2-quart baking dish. Refrigerate stew to be frozen, then seal and freeze.

For topping of "to-be-eaten-now" stew, combine pancake mix, milk, egg and melted shortening in bowl. Stir until batter is fairly smooth. Pour over hot stew. Bake in preheated moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 20 to 25 minutes or until lightly browned.

BREAST MILK IS BEST MILK

QUESTION: Is evaporated milk as nourishing for my baby as a commercial formula. It's much cheaper and I would like to use the evaporated milk but do not want to compromise my baby's health!

ANSWER: The best milk for a newborn baby is breast milk. Commercial formulas are rated second, while a formula prepared from evaporated whole cow's milk is third, particularly for a newborn. Both the commercial formulas and the evaporated whole cow's milk formula provide the necessary nutrients. However, the evaporated whole milk contains unmodified cow's milk, protein and fat which may lead to digestive upset in a new baby. This is praticularly true if the baby's family has a history of allergy. If you plan to give your baby a formula, choose a commercial formula for the first month or so and then switch. Make sure you buy evaporated WHOLE milk rather than 2 per cent or skim.

QUESTION: Can you mix vegetables so that your protein intake contains all the amino acids equivalent to meat? If so, how do you do this?

ANSWER: A mixture of half legumes (dried peas, beans, or lentils) and half cereals (corn, wheat or rice) comes close to providing a complete protein nutritionally equivalent to meat, but not quite. It can be improved considerably by the addition of nuts. Or, it can be made equivalent by the addition of small amounts of milk, cheese, or egg. It is important that these foods be eaten at the same meal and not at separate meals. In this way all the essential amino acids will be absorbed at about the same time and be available to the body cells at the same time. For more detailed information on how to balance proteins ask for a brochure called Nutrition Tips & Ideas from your local health unit or health department.

QUESTION: I was told that I should not eat bananas on my low calorie diet because they contain fat, is that so?

ANSWER: Don't let your friend turn you off bananas because you are dieting. They taste rich, but bananas have only 85 calories per 100 grams, which is about a 6 inch banana. These calories contain some valuable nutrients, and only 0.2 gm. of fat. Those other nutrients are: carbohydrate 22.2 gm., calcium 8 mg., phosphorus 26.7 mg., iron .7 mg., sodium 1.0 mg., potassium 370 mg., vitamin A 190 I.U., vitamin C 10 mg., niacin .7 mg.

Bananas are a nourishing food and an excellent source of potassium, and should be included in any well-balanced diet.

Italians Will Tell You Fennel's a Real Treat

craig claiborne

I was much gratified recently to discover at my local supermarket an abundance of fresh fennel bulbs overflowing one of the vegetable bins. This vegetable, unfortunately, is little known in North America, but much and deservedly appreciated by those of Italian heritage.

Fennel looks a bit like celery although it has a large green-white and delectable bulb at the base. It has a slight flavor of anise and, while it is choice when eaten raw and chilled as an appetizer like radishes or celery ribs, it is something to treasure when braised as follows:

FENOUIL BRAISE
(Braised fennel)

4 nice-sized, unblemished fennel bulbs.
7 tablespoons butter.
1½ cups chicken broth. Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste.
1½ cups grated Gruyere or Swiss cheese.

1. Preheat the oven to 400 degrees.
2. Cut each fennel into halves. If the outer leaves seem tough, pull them off and discard them.
3. Layer the pieces cut-side down in a casserole. Dot with three tablespoons of butter and add the chicken broth. Add salt and pepper to taste and bring to the boil on top of the stove. Cover closely and place the casserole in the oven. Bake about 25 to 30 minutes or until tender yet firm. They must not become mushy. Drain.
4. Cut each piece in half and arrange the quarters in one layer, cut-side up, in a baking dish. Sprinkle with cheese and pour the remaining four tablespoons of butter, melted, over all. Bake 10 minutes; then run the dish under the broiler until cheese becomes golden brown or darker.

Yield: Four to eight servings.

Succulent Salmon Stroganoff

2 cans (7¾ oz. each) salmon
¼ c. butter or margarine
1 green pepper, chopped
2 tbs. flour
1 can (4½ oz.) sliced mushrooms, undrained
½ pint (10 oz.) sour cream
2 tbs. chopped parsley
1 tbs. grated onion
pepper to taste

Flake salmon with its juice, crushing the bones. Saute green pepper in butter for 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Sprinkle flour over green peppers and stir well. Add flaked salmon, sliced mushrooms and juice, and sour cream. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture just boils.

Add remaining ingredients and heat through. Do not boil again. Serve over noodles, rice, toast cups or pastry shells. Serves 4-5. Recipe may be halved or doubled.

SAVE SOME MONEY

To save money, substitute whipped topping made from skim milk power or evaporated milk for whipped cream or ready-made topping.

BALANCED YULE MENUS ADVISED

Although the Christmas spirit may lead you to splurge in various ways, balanced menus are still a must. Family and friends will thank you for it.

Canada's Food Guide provides you with a basic plan. It recommends a specific number of servings of food which should be chosen every day from each of the four food groups: two to three servings of milk and milk products; three to five servings of bread and cereals; four to five servings of fruits and vegetables; and two servings of meat and alternates.

Include foods from each group in your Christmas menu. For example, turkey from the meat and alternates group; stuffing counts as one serving of bread; potatoes and vegetables supply two portions from the fruits and vegetables group; Christmas pudding or mince pie contribute another half-serving of fruit; cheese and crackers at the end of the meal supply a half-serving from the milk and milk products

When planning menus, avoid foods that are either too fatty or too sweet. They often supply far too many calories for what they're worth. So go easy on the gravy. Remove excess fat in broth and sauces. Chill them and lift off the solid fat. Whenever possible, use yogurt rather than cream or sour cream on fruits or vegetables.

Agriculture Canada's food consultants advise you to look for frozen or canned fruit that is packed without sugar or in a light syrup. In terms of frozen dairy products, sherbet and ice milk contain less fat than ice cream. Snacks like candies, chocolates and chips supply empty calories whereas crisp vegetables, fruit, nuts and raisins offer much more

If your hands and feet are warm, you are likely to feel warm all over.

The leaflet Canadian Mitts For The Family offers instructions on how to knit mitts to fit children as well as ladies and men. Although the instructions are written for children's size 4, the necessary changes for children's sizes 8 and 12 as well as for Ladies and Men's sizes, are indicated in brackets. Francophone knitters will also be able to follow the pattern, because all abreviations — such as K and P, for knit and purl — have been translated into French.

The leaflet also suggests attractive variations of the basic mitts. You could, for instance, make mitts with embroidery, with stripes and a one-color cuff, or with a ribbed gauntlet.

All the different types of mitts are pictured on the leaflet so it will be easy for you to decide which one you like best. If you knit mitts for several children in the same family, you will naturally want to create different looking pairs.

With your request for the leaflet please enclose a long (No. 10) self-addressed, stamped envelope and send it to: Patons & Baldwins (Canada) Ltd., 1001 Roselawn Avenue, Toronto, Ontario M6B 1B8.

DOES ASA UPSET YOUR STOMACH? If so, try ATASOL, the non-ASA pain reliever and fever reducer that doesn't upset your stomach. Unlike most pain relievers (which either are — or contain — ASA), ATASOL is 100% acetaminophen, a medication which relieves pain and fever as effectively as ASA, but without causing stomach irritation or bleeding. In fact, ATASOL is specifically recommended for people with 'sensitive' stomachs. So next time you have a fever, a headache, menstrual or other pain, reach for ATASOL instead. ATASOL and extra-strength ATASOL FORTE tablets are available in a pharmacy near you.

TURKEY DRESSING LIKE YOUR MOM USED TO MAKE. This has got to be the ideal stuffing recipe for a 10 lb. turkey: 8 cups soft bread crumbs or cubes, 1 cup onion, chopped, 1 cup celery, chopped, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 2 to 3 teaspoons poultry seasoning, ½ cup melted butter. Cook celery and onion in butter until tender and onion is translucent but not brown. Add this mixture to bread crumbs. Combine seasonings and add to bread crumbs. Combine thoroughly. Taste and adjust seasonings. Pack lightly into thawed turkey (stuffing swells as it cooks). Roast immediately after stuffing.

WHEN GAS IS A PROBLEM, reach for fast-acting, extra-strength OVOL 80 mg tablets. OVOL 80 mg tablets are peppermint-flavored chewable tablets that go to work right away to dissipate the pockets of trapped stomach gas that cause bloating and flatulence. So if you're occasionally troubled by gas discomfort as a result of over-eating, eating too quickly or too many spicy foods, remember that OVOL 80 mg tablets (and regular-strength OVOL 40 mg tablets) are the only products available for the relief of gas alone. As with any medical product, should symptoms persist, consult your family physician.

Food for Thought

This Yule Gift Can Save Lives

By DR. JEAN MAYER & DR. JOHANNA DWYER

If you've been a bit undecided in your holiday shopping, it's still not too late to give a gift that will promote good health and testify to your thoughtfulness. What's more, these gifts never go stale. They're all available through your favorite bookstore.

We've been particularly impressed with a number of sensible self-help books dealing with fitness and the prevention of heart disease.

Perhaps the most sensible we've read lately is The American Way of Life Need not Be Hazardous to Your Health, by Dr. John W. Farquahar, published by the Stanford University Alumni Association. Dr. Farquahar, a noted heart researcher, is director of Stanford's heart disease prevention program. In recent years he has emerged as a leader in developing ways to help people change health habits.

He offers good advice on how to cope with stress, how to give up smoking and how to get enough exercise. Diet and weight control also are discussed. You don't have to be a "health nut" to enjoy this book — Dr. Farquahar understands human frailty and, throughout, he advocates small, sensible changes in lifestyle that can make a big difference and still enable you to enjoy life.

A book that concentrates more on diet and the healthy heart is A Change for Heart: Your Family and the Food You Eat, by Drs. James M. Ferguson and C. Barr Taylor. It emphasizes doing — you read a little and head for the kitchen to start changing the way you eat. There are eight chapters — each outlining a week-long program complete with worksheets to help you chart your progress. By the end of the eight weeks, you should be on your way to more sensible eating habits. The book is available from the Bull Publishing Co., Palo Alto, Calif.

Another how-to program is outlined by Jan Koulton and Mary Ellen Collins in their combination book-calendar entitled Eat and Run, published by John Wiley and Sons of New York. They offer a lot of sound advice on exercise and diet in the form of a daily appointment calendar. Again, the approach is one step at a time, with steady gains emphasized instead of great erratic laps (which all too often are offset by equal amounts of backsliding).

There also are a number of good books for those who want a sensible approach to weight loss and control. Drs. Michael and Kathryn Mahoney have written Permanent Weight Control: A Total Solution to the Dieter's Dilemma. This book, published by W. W. Norton of New York, stresses sensible eating habits rather than the miracle approach to weight loss. In a similar vein, you might pick up Habits, Not Diet: The Real Way to Weight Control, by Dr. James M. Ferguson, also published by Bull Publishing Co. of Palo Alto. This publishing house also offers The Pain of Obesity, by Dr. Albert J. Stunkard, a book that helps those weight problems better understand themselves and the methods of weight control. Finally, in this category, there is Dr. Jean Mayer's A Diet for Living, which lays out general rules for healthy, enjoyable eating and answers many basic nutrition questions.

The list would not be complete without a mention of exercise books. Although running is today's fad, we are particularly taken with The Magic of Walking, by Aaron Sussman and Ruth Goode. The book was first published by Simon & Schuster in 1967, but its good advice, still holds. Another older book we recommend is Dr. Kenneth Cooper's The New Aerobics, published by Bantam Books in 1970. This guide gets you into the more vigorous forms of exercise — perhaps getting you into shape for James F. Fixx's immensely popular Complete Book of Running (Random House).

To help carry through on healthy New Year's resolutions, you might consider Break the Smoking Habit, by O. F. and C. S. Pomerleau, available from Research Press, Champaign, Ill. For persons with a drinking problem, help may come from James L. Free's Just One More (Bull Publishing Co.)

Remember that books alone will not make you or your loved ones healthy. So don't forget other stocking-stuffers that add action to words. One possibility is a membership in the local Y, which offers everything from exercise programs to stop-smoking clinics. Whatever your choice, we wish you a healthy holiday season and coming year.

Perfectly Delightful Treat Christmas Carrot Cake

Now is a good time to plan special food for the Holiday Season, for those special guests. Delightful Christmas Carrot Cake will make a perfect treat and impress your friends and relatives.

The old-fashioned Christmas Carrot Cake goes modern when made in a Bundt pan. Decorate the holiday cake with icing and candied fruit and ginger, to make it epecially attractive when served to guests. Make two, and freeze one for a lovely dessert idea when unexpected company arrives. Or make two and give one away "from our house to yours," to that special neighbor.

Wrap the Christmas Carrot Cake in foil, place in a wicker basket, and decorate with some red and green ribbon, along with a small Christmas ornament and gift tag.

CHRISTMAS CARROT CAKE
(Makes One 10-inch Bundt Pan)

2 cups cake flour
1⅓ cups packed brown sugar
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon ground allspice
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
1 can condensed tomato soup
½ cup shortening
2 eggs
¼ cup honey
1 cup shredded raw carrots

—Generously grease and flour a 10-inch Bundt pan.

—Measure dry ingredients into large bowl. Add soup and shortening.

—Bake in 350 deg. F. oven for one hour or until done.

—Cool in pan 15 minutes; remove and cool on rack. Sprinkle with icing sugar or ice and decorate with candied fruit and ginger.

Carrot and Ginger Marmalade is an ideal accompaniment for roast pork, turkey or lamb. It would be an extra touch to add these serving suggestions to the labels on the jelly jars, and give the jars as gifts.

The marmalade is a good hostess suggestion not only because it is delicious and unique, but it can be made in a minimum of time with sugar and fruit pectin products.

Wrap the jars in a square of red or green gingham, pinking the edges, draw the gingham around the jar and tie with a ribbon.

CARROT AND GINGER MARMALADE
(Makes 9 Medium Glasses)

3½ cups prepared citrus and carrot mixture (2 lemons, 2 oranges, and about 2 pounds of carrots)
½ cup chopped candied ginger (about ¼ pound)
6½ cups sugar
½ bottle liquid fruit pectin.

—First, prepare citrus and carrot mixture. Grate the rind from 2 medium-sized oranges. Remove orange sections, free from membrane, and dice pulp. Squeeze the juice from 2 medium-sized lemons.

—Cook about 2 pounds carrots until tender. Drain and chop very fine or grind.

—Combine orange rind, pulp and juice, lemon juice, and carrots; measure 3½ cups into a large saucepan.

—Chop fine about ¼ pound candied ginger. Measure ½ cup into saucepan with fruit.

—Then make the marmalade. Add sugar to fruit in saucepan and mix well. Place over high heat, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard for 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and at once stir in liquid fruit pectin. Skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim for 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit.

GRANNY SENDS A PIN-UP

RUNCORN, England (CP) — Mary Morland, a resident of Runcorn, has offered her picture to the Royal Navy as a pin-up. Mrs. Morland 63, wrote: "My pictures below decks would remind young sailors to write home to their grans."

Sterilization Preferred

NEW YORK (AP) — More women than men chose voluntary sterilization as their method of birth control in 1977. In the early 1970s men represented 80 per cent of the total undergoing sterilization. From 1973 to 1976 equal percentages of each sex chose sterilization. Last year, women made up 60 per cent of the total.

BUTTERED WHOLE CHESTNUTS PERFECT FOR CHRISTMAS

2 pounds chestnuts
3 tablespoons butter
Salt to taste
¾ cup chicken broth
1 tablespoon sugar

1 Preheat oven to 400 degrees.

2 Using a sharp paring knife, make an incision around the perimeter of each chestnut, starting and ending on either side of the "topknot" or stem end. Place the chestnuts in one layer in a baking dish just large enough to hold them. Place them in the oven and bake about 10 minutes, or until they open. Let the chestnuts cool just until they can be handled. Peel them while they are hot.

3 Place the chestnuts in a saucepan and add the butter, salt to taste, broth and sugar. Cover and cook over low heat, stirring frequently, 10 to 15 minutes. Place them in the oven and bake, stirring occasionally, 25 to 30 minutes or until thoroughly tender. Serve as a vegetable.

Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

The Day It Rained Mashed Potatoes

KING'S LYNN, England (CP) — A depression hung over this town after heavy showers of mashed potatoes covered houses and cars. The Dornay Foods Factory blamed a production fault which blasted potato granules out of an extractor fan.

If in Doubt, Ask the Doctor

your health

By L. L. Coleman, MD

My husband was taken to the hospital with a heart attack. The electrocardiogram did not show it, but the doctor said that "the enzymes were positive." I didn't understand it. I'm therefore asking you. — Mrs. W.W.J.

Dear Mrs. J.:

My immediate reaction to your letter is to comment on the inadequacy of a doctor-patient relationship that does't answer thoroughly all questions about the patient. Bear in mind that before a question is answered, it must be asked. Families at a high level of anxiety frequently do not follow this simple rule. And even if they do, that same state of anxiety sometimes makes it impossible for them to understand what the doctor is saying.

Doctors have only one guide as to whether their message and instructions are completely understood by the patient and his family. If patients do not ask questions, the doctor has a right to assume that no confusion exists.

Now, about the enzymes. These are special substances that are normally produced in the body. When there is the impact of a heart attack or other disorders, the enzyme levels increase and are used as a significant diagnostic tool.

Very often, a heart attack may show no electrocardiogram changes for the first 24 hours. Long before these changes are apparent, the enzyme levels rise to a point where the diagnosis can be made, even in the absence of electrocardiogram changes.

A number of these enzymes are known as SGOT, LDH and CPK. These letters represent the complex names of enzymes that are used for diagnostic purposes. Many new enzymes are constantly being discovered. These, when carefully evaluated, add helpful information for the diagnosis and early treatment of heart disease and other disorders.

I have an almost constant cold. My nose is always blocked solid. This goes on for months at a time. Is there any way of breaking up this unpleasant cycle? Miss B.Z.

Dear Miss Z.:

It is difficult to believe that a cold can last for such a long time without progressing into a severe problem or disappearing entirely.

A bacterial infection does not behave in this way. The likelihood is that you are suffering from some form of allergy. A special type of nasal smear may show the presence of certain cells, "eosinophiles," which are characteristic of allergy.

In some instances, people with an underlying allergy may be more prone to bacterial infection. The study of the blood can clearly show if such an infection exists. X-rays of the sinuses may be of diagnostic significance. Smears and cultures of the nose and throat may also reveal persistent inf ction.

ALL THIS ANGLER CAUGHT WAS TROUBLE

HOQUIAM, Wash. (AP) — Sometimes you go fishing — and end up wishing you had stayed in bed.

That must be how Washington State's unluckiest angler of the year felt Wednesday.

There he was, walking across the spillway of a stream on the Hoquiam city watershed, in an area posted against trespassing.

Along came wildlife agent Dan Guy on routine patrol. Not wanting the fisherman to run afoul of the law, Guy stopped his car and walked toward the fisherman to warn him about the no-trespassing rule.

The fisherman spotted Guy's shoulder patch, spooked and headed for the brush. The agent circled around to the highway and was waiting when the fisherman emerged panting from the woods.

Before Guy could say "Halt! You're under arrest," the fisherman fled again, this time jumping into a nearby reservoir and swimming across it despite heavy winter clothing and hipboots.

Guy returned to the spillway, walked across and waited for the exhausted, panicky and waterlogged angler to climb out wheezing and freezing.

After hauling the man out on the bank, Guy sat down to have a chat with him. Just then a couple of the fisherman's buddies showed up. They, too, spooked at the shoulder patch and headed for the woods.

Guy took the soggy fisherman to town and returned to the river to find the other two. When he did, he learned the trespasser's eight-year-old son had been part of the party too and now was missing.

It turned out he had hiked to a nearby farmhouse and caught a ride to a relative's house in town. But the relative was not home.

Hoquiam police found the cold, shivering boy that night, wandering aimlessly in an attempt to find his home.

When it was all over, the first fisherman was cited for trespassing and his friends were charged with obstructing an arrest.

Finnish scientists say: Baldness can be halted.

LONDON — Two Finnish scientists say they have designed a scalp treatment that can halt baldness and even start new hair growing in many cases.

The scientists, who are putting the treatment on sale in the form of a solution, say that among volunteers who applied it to their scalp for 28 weeks, hair growth resumed in 60 per cent of the cases and hair loss decreased within four weeks.

The product called Bioscal, contains a synthetic detergent, which clears away dead hair and other dirt clogging the follicles — the tiny sacs in which hair grows.

Another ingredient, a compound, then sets in motion a process which allegedly results in the growth of new hair.

Diabetic Pills Kill: Nader

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anti-diabetes pills may be responsible for thousands of deaths a year and should not be taken by overweight diabetics, a consumer group warned today.

The Ralph Nader-backed Health Research Group issued the warning in separate letters to the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and the American Medical Association (AMA).

"At a time when patients need as much information as possible so they can interfere with dangerous drug prescribing habits of doctors, it is inexcusable that FDA has not proposed patient information for these drugs," Dr. Sidney Wolfe wrote in a letter to FDA Commissoner Donald Kennedy.

Wolfe said the FDA "relies on merely informing those doctors who — despite all evidence to the contrary — have continued to use these harmful drugs."

Wolfe cited one study that showed an increased death rate from cardiovascular disease in diabetics using the drug tolbutamide.

Other drugs he cited include tolazamide, chlorpropamide and acetohexamide.

"I believe that no responsible physician should be prescribing these pills to diabetics who are overweight since weight reduction itself lowers blood sugar without increasing the risk of death," Wolfe wrote.

In a letter to Dr. James Sammons, executive director of the AMA, Wolfe said: "I would hope you might urge your members not to prescribe these drugs to the large number of overweight diabetics for whom such therapy represents malpractice."

There is no immediate response from the FDA or the AMA.

Wolfe said about 1.75 million diabetics still are using the pills "which may be responsible for thousands of deaths a year and which Americans spent about $200 million on in 1977."

However, Wolfe said a recent study indicates that diabetics are beginning to take note of warnings about the pills. The study shows that the number of prescriptions written for the drugs dropped to 9.5 million in 1977 from 19.5 million in 1973.

"While this is cause for considerable optimism," Wolfe said, "it means that about 1.75 million diabetics are still using these pills."

Hijack to Cuba Foiled

CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI) — A man with his hand stuck in his coat pocket and carrying a grocery bag full of $1 bills tried to hijack a New York-to-Miami airliner to Cuba today but was thwarted and taken into custody by FBI agents, authorities said. No one aboard the plane was hurt.

The National Airlines 727 made an unscheduled landing in Charleston to discharge the man, who was arrested by FBI agents. The plane, Flight 97, continued on to Miami and landed shortly after 6 a.m.

The man was identified as Gerald Edmond Casey, 55, hometown unknown, and charged with crime aboard an aircraft and interference with a flight crew.

FBI agent Ed Skinner said the man began the attempted skyjacking by forcing a flight attendant against a wall of the plane and asking how far they were from Cuba.

Skinner said the man kept his hand in the pocket of his coat but the FBI refused to say whether he had a gun.

Cult Trial Opens

GEORGETOWN (Reuter) — Dale Parks, a Peoples Temple defector, told a magistrate Wednesday that he saw accused murderer Larry Layton pull a gun and shoot two cult members at the Port Kaituma airstrip Nov. 18.

Parks was the first witness called by the prosecution in the preliminary inquiry into the murders of U.S. Representative Leo Ryan (Dem. Calif.) and four others, including Parks' mother, Patricia.

Layton has been charged with the five murders.

Japan Tire Recall

WASHINGTON (WP) — Faced with reports of accidents and injuries in Japan involving steel-belted radial tires, the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. Wednesday informed the Japanese Government that it would include American-made 500 radials sold in Japan in its recently announced tire recall.

The Japanese Transportation Ministry said Wednesday that some 24,000 tires will be called back to the United States and replaced free of charge.

U.S. Still Strong

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says predictions of a recession in the United States next year might "become a self-fulfilling prophesy" if people begin to believe them, even though the country's economy is basically sound.

The economy continues to show strength that even his own advisers have found surprising, he said. He pointed to recent favorable statistics on housing, employment, retail sales and business inventories.

U.K. Labor Stakes All on Curbs

LONDON (Reuter) — The survival of the Labor government depends on a vote of confidence today in the House of Commons, called by Prime Minister James Callaghan after a key element in his anti-inflation policy was rejected Wednesday night.

The opposition parties who combined to denounce the government's use of economic sanctions to enforce a five-per-cent pay increase guideline are unlikely to remain united, however, and the government, despite an overall minority of five in the lower house, is expected to survive the vote.

The House of Commons, led by the opposition Conservative party, voted 285-to-279 for an amendment criticizing the use of economic sanctions against companies which have granted wage increase that are above the five-per-cent mark.

The issue became volatile when the Ford Motor Co. in Britain gave workers a 16.9-per-cent increase following a strike. The government said it would no longer buy Ford cars and might withdraw aid.

A glum Callaghan, while promising to reconsider the sanctions, told Parliament: "I don't disguise from the House that in my view this represents a serious defeat for the country and the government's fight against inflation."

The pime minister then announced, amid excited shouts from politicians of all parties, that he would seek a vote of confidence.

"The government will accept the verdict of the House and if we are defeated we shall ask the country to choose," he said.

The blow to the government's pay policy came on an amendment from the Opposition to a government motion welcoming the reduction in Britain's inflation to below eight per cent.

The chances of Callaghan having to call an immediate general election decreased after a small group of left-wingers in his party, who abstained on the sanctions vote, let it be known it would not vote against the government today.

Callaghan must call an election by October, 1979, when the government's five-year mandate ends. With his economic policy seriously undermined, he may be forced into a contest in the spring rather than in the fall.

CALLAGHAN
. . . a serious defeat

The latest Gallup poll shows the Conservative party has a five-and-one-half per cent lead over Labor, which led other parties by five per cent last month.

On paper, the government and its allies muster a total effective voting strength of 311 in the 635-member house. The Conservatives, Liberals, Northern Ireland Unionists, Scots and Welsh Nationalists muster a nominal 318. Other seats are currently vacant or occupied by the speaker and his deputies who do not vote.

Dying Star Verifies Einstein's Theories

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scientists looking at the blinking radiation of a dying star say they have the first direct evidence supporting the existence of gravity waves, predicted by Albert Einstein.

A research team at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst says gravity waves themselves have not been observed, but changes in the orbit of a distant, invisible star appear to be caused by gravity wave emissions, the National Science Foundation announced Wednesday.

Gravity waves are a yet-untested prediction of the general theory of relativity posed by Einstein, the late physics genius. The hypothesized waves are based upon the forces of gravity, rather than those of electricity and magnetism.

Gravity is the force that makes things fall to the ground and keeps people from drifting off into space. It also is the "glue" that holds our solar system, galaxy and universe together.

Dr. Joseph Taylor, who will present the research group's findings at a Munich, West Germany, symposium this week, said the results probably will not directly aid scientists who for years have tried to build gravity wave detectors.

"But it is at least proof that the radiation they are looking for exists and that they are not on a wild goose chase," the astronomer said in a telephone interview.

The new data comes from using the powerful radio telescope at Arecibo, Puerto Rico, to study radio waves from a pulsar 15,000 light years from earth. A light year is the distance light can travel in a year at 186,000 miles per second.

Pulsars are thought to be the remnants of dying stars that collapse into a super-dense, rapidly spinning object after exploding. Powerful radio waves of unknown origin beam out from it in pulses, like a lighthouse beacon.

Taylor said it is generally believed the strong magnetic field associated with a dense object, and its spinning, somehow funnel the radio signals into a swinging beam. So far, scientists have detected only 320 pulsars and only two are visible with optical telescopes.

Einstein predicted that such a system should emit gravity waves which remove energy from the orbit. This would cause both objects to move closer together and cut the time it takes the pulsar to complete an orbit.

Taylor said relativity theory predicts the orbit time should decrease by one ten-thousandth of a second a year, precisely the amount his group measured for four years.

White's Bail $1M

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Former supervisor Dan White pleaded not guilty Wednesday to the Nov. 27 murders of Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk.

White, 32, a former policeman, fireman and army paratrooper, sat quietly next to his lawyer Douglas Schmidt, as Municipal Judge R. J. Reynolds set bail at $1 million. A preliminary hearing was set for Jan. 17.

If White is convicted under a new "special circumstances" statute covering murder of public officials, the death penalty would be mandatory.

Dyan Has Shed Mrs. Grant Image

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Dyan Cannon's principal claim to fame early in her Hollywood career reposited in the fact that she was Mrs. Cary Grant, a pretty young thing who also wanted to be an actress.

Today Dyan is a dynamic woman with far greater impact and visibility in the motion picture industry than her ex-husband.

She is the only woman ever to win Academy Award nominations on both sides of the camera — in 1969 for her performance in Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice and for best director of a short subject in 1976 for Number One.

Dyan is one of the most exciting women working in Hollywood, with contracts at Universal and 20th Century-Fox to write, produce, direct and star in a couple of feature films.

Dyan's first opportunity came through the American Film Institute which provided her with a paltry $1,000 to make a short subject.

Dyan's film, dealing with children, cost her an additional $50,000 which she borrowed from friends and family.

The result was a professionally polished, beautifully turned out 48-minute short subject which recently won an award at the Miami Film Festival. Both Universal and Fox brass were impressed.

Dyan pulled out of her own doldrums with roles in Heaven Can Wait and the TV movie Lady of the House.

Farming 'Class' Cut

PEKING (Reuter) — Millions of young Chinese will no longer have to round off their education with a long and arduous period of farm labor.

The program of going to the farms, which once was applied to all students, is to be phased out. The newspaper China Youth says the program had resulted in a host of problems.

Some of the problems listed by the newspaper are "that the majority of educated youth cannot support themselves, some cannot settle problems in marriage, housing, and sickness, and in many localities there are no facilities for their political, cultural and scientific studies."

It added: "Many educated youths are dispirted and the voices of discontent are heard everywhere among the masses."

It, however, warned young people yearning for a quick return to their city homes that time is needed to end the program.

"It cannot be done now," the newspaper said. "There is still a part of the educated youth who will go to the countryside but there will be adjustments and changes in scale, policy and practical method."

The appraisal of the program contrasted with earlier cheerful news accounts about how young people heeded the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung's call and trooped off to try farming.

One such story by the official news agency Hsinhua in June, 1975, told how one group of youngsters in Shantung Province told their peers how "We will brave all hardships and difficulties and become path-breakers in opening up wasteland rather than spend our time enjoying ourselves in beautiful gardens."

There have been many reports over the decade of "defectors" who moved back into town and, being without ration cards or jobs, turned to crime.

Authorities in Peking recently admitted that crime was the capital's top social problem and was on the increase, "particularly crimes committed by teenagers and youths."

Mao initiated the program of sending educated youngsters to rural area in 1958. He said the program was necessary so educated young people might be re-educated by peasants.

By 1973, Communist party theoretical journal Red Flag was saying that youngsters were becoming "the first generation of new-type peasants with a high cultural level . . . ."

In the five years since the comment China has changed and Mao's policies are being downgraded as the country turns to meet its ambitious modernization plans.

One recent poster, which was written by "several hundred educated youths" on four state farms near Peking, complained that youths were being turned into farmworkers "against our will."

Peking Seagrams

PEKING (TNS) — A Chinese state importing firm has just announced to resident foreigners in Peking that it can help quench their thirsts with the kind of booze they like in the West — everything from scotch, rye and bourbon to quality French wines, cognac and champagne. Moreover, the prices are competitive with those in Hong Kong where most residents purchase their spoirits and wines.

Seagrams of Canada, through its New York office, is responsible for this unique offer — nobody has been able to purchase Western liquor from the Chinese since liberation in 1949. The company is believed to have sold 16,000 case of various spirits to the Chinese.

Refugee Quota Pat Cullen Tells House

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration Minister Bud Cullen indicated Wednesday Canada has made no offers to step up refugee efforts in Southeast Asia despite commitments by other countries at a world conference in Geneva.

Cullen said in the Commons Canadian representatives did not go to the Geneva conference this week with plans to offer anything extra.

The conference, called by the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, was designed to produce long-term plans for dealing with the Laotian, Cambodian and Vietnamese refugees, he said.

However, the UN conference has ended with commitments by several countries to accept up to 80,000 more refugees, said Guy Ouellet, a spokesman for the high commissioner in Ottawa.

And some countries banded together to contribute $13 million more for refugee efforts in Southeast Asia, even though this was not a fund-raising meeting, Ouellet said.

Canada also receives up to 70 refugees a month from Laos, Vietnam and Cambodia. More than 7,000 have entered this country since 1975.

Jake Epp, Progressive Conservative immigration critic, said outside the Commons Canada cannot avoid increasing the flow of Southeast Asian refugees. The UN high commission office in Ottawa estimates about 545,000 refugees are in camps in Thailand, Vietnam and Malaysia.

Canada should also consider using foreign aid funds to help poor countries accept well-trained refugees, Epp said. Some of these poor nations now say they cannot affort to transport skilled refugees from camps in Southeast Asia.

Epp said he understands the Geneva conference "made no progress on the longer-term problems of refugees and how the international community should handle it."

External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson said in the House that Canada has repeatedly urged more countries to accept refugees.

UFO REPORT STILL FLUMMOXES AUSSIES

SYDNEY (UPI) — Nearly two months ago, a single-engine plane flying over Australia vanished as its 20-year-old pilot raved about a long object with "four bright lights" chasing him.

Today aviation officials admitted they still do not know how, why or if the plane was overtaken by an unidentified flying object, or if the entire incident was a hoax.

Since October 21, when Frederich Valentich disappeared under bizarre circumstances, officials have searched a 10,000 square-mile area without finding a trace of the pilot or plane.

Valentich was flying from Melbourne's Moorabbin Airport to King Island, 130 miles across the Bass Strait separating Tasmania from mainland Australia.

Aviation spokesman Ken Williams said today, "Officially the file is still open in the absence of a body or a plane. We have not found anything at all relative to the disappearance of the aircraft."

During the final minutes of radio communication with Air Traffic Control, Valentich reported a large aircraft flying at below 5,000 feet altitude, but said he could not identify it.

He told the tower, "It has four bright lights, appear to be landing lights. Aircraft has just passed over me about 1,000 feet above.

"It's not an aircraft. It's . . ." The transmission then broke off.

Two minutes later Valentich came through again saying, "Melbourne, it's approaching from due east toward me. It seems to be playing some sort of game . . . flying at a speed I cannot estimate.

"It is flying past . . . It is a long shape . . . Cannot identify more than that . . . Coming for me right now . . . It seems to be stationary ... I'm orbiting and the thing is orbiting on top of me also . . . It has a green light and sort of metallic light on the outside."

Tower controllers then heard a metallic noise and contact with Valentich was lost.

The pilot's father says he believes his son is still alive.

Malaysian Police Turn Away 2 Craft

KUALA TRENGGANU, Malaysia (Reuter) — Police turned away two boats carrying about 300 Vietnamese refugees who tried to land on Malaysia's eastern coast Wednesday night, a local government spokesman said today.

He said the refugees tried to scuttle their boats in choppy seas so they could be rescued and brought ashore. But police prevented them and sent them back to the open sea.

Earlier this week 161 refugees who disabled their fishing craft and jumped into the sea were rescued and taken to a refugee camp.

Officials say they believe more than 200 vessels have put to sea from Vietnam since last month.

Peking Warns Hanoi

HONG KONG (UPI) — Armed Vietnamese intruded into China today and shelled a border outpost, seriously wounding a Chinese security guard, Peking charged today.

The reported attack came after China's Vice Premier Li Hsien-nien accused Vietnam of serious provocations and sternly warned that "China's forebearance has its limit."

Peking's New China News Agency, monitored in Hong Kong, said the intrusion began when the Vietnamese "lobbed one shell at a Chinese outpost on the border.

"Later more than 10 armed Vietnamese intruded into China and took three heights in Liaohang (in China's Kwangsi Chuang Autonomous Region)," the agency said.

The warning by Li Hsien-nien, vice premier and vice chairman of the Communist Party, followed the strongest formal protest yet made to Vietnam since differences between the two countries erupted into the open almost a year ago.

Vendetta Rejected

WASHINGTON (CP) — Leaders of the National Association of Broadcasters reassured their Canadian counterparts Wednesday they believe trade sanctions against Canada would provide no solution to the border broadcasting dispute.

The sanctions were proposed by a group of U.S. border television stations, urging the U.S. to retaliate against the Canadian law, which prohibits tax deductions on advertisements placed on a U.S. station and directed at a Canadian audience.

Boumedienne Months in Coma?

ALGIERS (AP) — President Houari Boumedienne of Algeria, in a coma for 25 days, might live for months without regaining consciousness, medical sources said Wednesday.

CLC To Back Super Board

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) decided Wednesday to co-operate with the federal government's new board of economic development ministers in a bid to have labor views considered more fully in future government policy-making.

The executive council of the 2.3-million-member congress voted to co-operate with the board, headed by minister Robert Andras, on condition that labor participation is given as much weight as business input.

A congress spokesman said CLC president Dennis McDermott was encouraged by headway he made at recent informal meeting with Prime Minister Trudeau and Labor Minister Martin O'Connell.

The congress spokesman said that after a CLC representation Trudeau promised to have the inflation rate published on the basis of both the old and new formulas used to determine the Consumer Price Index.

The formula for determining the Consumer Price Index was changed last month by Statistics Canada, with the result that union cost-of-living adjustment clauses based on the old formula were thrown into disarray.

The congress also got Trudeau to agree to publish labor's minority report on the findings of 23 industrial study groups set up to make recommendations to the federal and provincial governments.

Labor had dissented from the majority findings by a committee of labor, business and academic representatives but its views were excluded from the report.

As the congress was announcing plans to co-operate with the board, opposition critics in the Commons were attacking it.

Trudeau said in opening debate on the cabinet resolution to set up the board that it would make a major contribution.

The CLC made clear that its decision to co-operate with the new economic board in determining economic policies does not diminish its commitment to support the New Democratic Party politically.

The council was told that as a result of a series of meetings, long-time union rivals the Canadian Paperworkers Union and the International Woodworkers of America have decided to work together.

That means an agreement not to raid each other's membership and opens the possibility of a merger.

UIC Curbs to Put Building Workers on Dole?

OTTAWA (CP) — Thousands of construction workers will be forced to take welfare because of the federal government's proposal to slash the unemployment insurance program, a spokesman for building trades unions said Wednesday.

About 25 per cent of the country's 400,000 construction workers are unemployed and will be particularly hard-hit by the tightened eligibility requirements, union spokesman James McCambly said in a brief to cabinet.

Manpower Minister Bud Cullen missed the construction workers' presentation because he was attending a meeting of the Commons manpower committee, which voted narrowly to pass the contentious bill and send it to the next stage of Parliamentary consideration.

McCambly said because of the seasonal nature of the construction industry, the proposed bill will make about 13,500 construction workers ineligible for benefits next year.

"The only place to go is welfare."

The building trades leaders also pressed the federal government to increase investment in the construction industry and to make interest payments of more than six per cent on residential mortgages partially tax deductible. The tax exemptions, on a sliding scale pegged to the size of the interest rate, would be aimed at low and middle-income families.

A Canadian family needs a total annual income of $29,000 to afford a house that a family in the U.S. can buy with an income of $14,000 using the commonly accepted standard of 27 per cent of total income for housing payments and property taxes.

"In 1975, only nine per cent of Canadians could afford the average new residence, but 42 per cent of Americans could afford to buy their average new home."

Residential mortgage interest is a root cause of inflationary pressure which can and should be relieved by government, the unions said.

The unions urged the federal government to put pressure on other levels of government to ensure that a surplus supply of serviced land is available at all times for all types of housing.

Developers should not be allowed to create an artificial shortage of land, the brief said.

Easy, easy — and so good. Heat ½ cup salad oil in a foil-lined pan, then place 2 cut-up chickens in the hot oil; season with salt, pepper, and oregano. Bake 20 minutes, then turn, season some more, and bake 20 minutes more. Five minutes before serving add fresh mushrooms and lots of parmesan cheese. Heat until cheese is melted.

Minnie Mt. Petitioners Query Paterson's Role

Ald. David Paterson failed to make his position clear in Saanich council matters relating to a land-use contract for Minnie Mountain property, a B.C. Supreme Court justice was told here Wednesday.

In a chambers hearing started Tuesday before Mr. Justice William Trainor, counsel for petitioners said Paterson made no acknowledgment of his relationship with solicitors in whose firm he is employed and their relationship with clients applying to the municipality for a land-use contract in the Ten Mile Point area.

The court is being asked to direct whether Paterson did disqualify himself and whether the bylaw passed by Saanich council, in which Paterson voted his approval, should be quashed.

It was expected the submissions on behalf of petitioners will be completed this morning, with submissions to follow by counsel representing Saanich, Ald. Paterson and Broadmead Farms Ltd., the firm proposing to develop the property.

Lawrence Fast, counsel for the petitioners on both questions, said their position is that land-use bylaw 4172, authorizing the municipality to enter into a land-use contract with Broadmead for development of Minnie Mountain, was not properly enacted. They want the court to give guidance so justice may be seen to be done.

Fast entered a large quantity of documents and affidavits relating to public records of council minutes and legal transactions. The petitioners, he said, were seven electors who are residents of the Ten Mile Point area, some of them members of the Cadboro Bay Ratepayers Association at the time of their petition.

He said the association represented half the 130 families which have given financial support to the petition which suggests there is reasonable apprehension that Paterson had an interest or involvement in the bylaw and as a result was biased toward the land-use contract.

Dermod Owen-Flood, Paterson's solicitor, said the grounds for bias and disqualification are quite different, produce different results and require different standards of proof.

Rodney Taylor, appearing for Saanich, objected that the facts alleged by the affidavits are hearsay and therefore not sufficient.

Vancouver lawyer B. W. Fodchuk, appearing for Broadmead Farms, said there are affidavits including persons not shown to have an interest in the bylaw, which should therefore be dismissed.

He also said he admitted Pearlman and Lindholm, the firm with which Paterson is associated, did provide legal services for Broadmead in matters relating to real estate and land registry, but not involving negotiations for rezoning or a land-use contract. The admission includes the firm's involvement with the Minnie Mountain land purchase and in acting for Saanich in some matters.

Parks Action Wanted

A campaign to establish 14 underwater parks is receiving widespread public support but no action from the provincial government, an underwater expert said Tuesday.

Betty Pratt-Johnson, scuba diver and author of a guidebook on diving in B.C. and Washington waters, said two of the proposed parks are located in Victoria waters — Race Rocks and Ogden Point Breakwater.

In an interview, Pratt-Johnson said in separate meetings, former Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf and Travel Industry Minister Grace McCarthy both said they supported the underwater park campaign she launched a year ago.

She quotes McCarthy as saying March 28: "I will certainly share with my colleagues the suggestion you make that underwater parks should be one of our priorities in the next few months. I certainly would like to support that suggestion and that idea."

"But they never contacted me again," Pratt-Johnson said.

"Empty words. Or are they? Will they not stand up and support the cause with acts as well as words?"

Of 571 persons questioned, 99 per cent were in favor, she said.

She said underwater parks are necessary to protect the fauna, flora and artifacts from destruction or removal by sport or commercial divers and from pollution by industry.

"But underwater parks are also recreational places where all people — even non-swimmers — can enter via glass-bottomed boats or towers down into the sea," she said.

"They shouldn't be ignored by the government.

"They will not only attract tourists the way the Grouse Mountain skyride does in Vancouver but they'll attract divers to the province," she said.

Thoughts of Death

BALTIMORE — Carol Channing said she began to worry about dying when a fire trapped her in a smoke-filled room at the Lord Baltimore Hotel. "My husband and I were in the room because we couldn't get down the hallway from the smoke," she said after firemen led them from the hotel Wednesday. "I thought, 'It is a slow death,' and then that we'll have to hold hands and jump out the window. Things like that go through your mind." The hotel was hit by two fires Wednesday. Miss Channing, her husband Charles Lowe and 200 other hotel guests were evacuated when a storage closet caught fire at about 1:30 a.m. Seven hours later, after the guests had returned to their rooms, a second fire broke out in an unoccupied apartment, fire investigators said. It was that blaze which trapped Miss Channing and her husband. Two minor injuries were reported from the fires in the hotel, which is across the street from a theatre where Miss Channing is starring in Hello, Dolly!

BEVERLY HILLS — John Wayne, whose most frequent movie roles have been straight-talking Westerners, has been named Advertising Personality of the Year for his role in television commercials for Great Western Savings bank. Club president Harry Spitzer said: "His appearance in the ads created an atmosphere of honesty, directness and believability all advertising attempts to achieve."

KAMPALA - When you live in Uganda, you practise what Big Daddy Idi Amin preaches, and what the "president for life" is preaching now is marital fidelity. Amin is upset by reports of hanky-panky between some of his ministers and married women, and he wants it stopped forthwith.

Camping Clobber For PM

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau danced up a storm at the annual Liberal Christmas party on Parliament Hill Wednesday after he received a present of camping equipment from Santa Claus.

The camp stove, fuel, sleeping bag and lantern may have been inspired by a weekend interview with the Paris newspaper Le Figaro in which Trudeau said he may retire to the country when he bows out of politics.

About 1,200 MPs, their guests and other Liberal party members jammed the king-sized committee room in an attempt to glimpse Trudeau who waltzed and polkaed to the tunes of a German-style band with two young women.

Meg's Tony to Wed Again

LONDON — Princess Margaret's ex-husband, photographer Anthony Armstrong-Jones, will remarry Friday in a civil ceremony in London, Buckingham Palace said today.

The Earl of Snowdon — the title he was given when he married the princess 18 years ago — and television production assistant Lucy Lindsay-Hogg, the 37-year-old daughter of an Irish dress designer, will wed at the Kensington register office.

Lord Snowdon, 48 and Princess Margaret, also 48, separated in early 1976 and filed for a mutual consent divorce May 18 on grounds their marriage had irretrievably broken down. At the time, the princess' household said she had no plans to remarry.

Although Lord Snowdon has maintained good relations with members of the royal family — photographing them on several occasions throughout the year — the palace said no members of the royal family would be attending the "quiet, private" ceremony.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costless, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

The Lord is my Shepherd -
I shall not want
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures
He leadeth me beside the still waters
He restoreth my soul
He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake
Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I will fear no evil
For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me
Thou anointest my head with oil
My cup runneth over
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

Prime Rate Rising?

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Jean Chretien Wednesday repeated the government's determination to keep interest rates competitive with those in the United States, but refused to say whether this means the Bank of Canada will take action to increase interest rates.

The prime rate in the United States — the interest rate bank offer their most creditworthy clients — now stands at 11.5 per cent and it is widely predicted it could rise above 13 per cent in 1979. The Canadian prime rate is an identical 11.5 per cent.

Answering questions from Sinclair Stevens, Progressive Conservative finance critic in the Commons, Chretien said: "It is very important for Canadians to maintain a competitive level of interest rates with the United States if we are not to see an outflow of capital from Canada to the United States."

Stevens was unable to get any hint from the minister withether the Bank of Canada is about to increase its lending rate from its current record level of 10.75 per cent.

When the Bank of Canada increases its rates, the chartered banks virtually always follow suit, keeping their prime rate three-quarters of a percentage point above the bank rate.

Stevens accused the government of deliberately raising interest rates in the short-term money market by selling a large number of short-term treasury bills.

Harvesting Winter Crops A Muddy Job

Lifting the tuberous roots of Jerusalem artichokes and leeks is a fairly messy job just now but as we think of them cooked and served as we like them, the discomfort becomes unimportant.

Take a pail half filled with water to the garden to receive the muddy vegetables as they are lifted from the wet soil.

Wear a pair of the oldest garden gloves to search for the artichokes in the soil as you dig. They may be quite deep, 10 to 12 inches even, according to the type of soil. And each piece left in will send up a shoot next spring. The rooting stems also spread outward from the tall leaf stems, so that tubers may be found 18 to 24 inches away.

The water in the pail is not for soaking the vegetables but for removing most of the mud. Use a little old brush for scrubbing, and put the partially cleaned tubers into another pan for taking indoors for final cleaning.

Dig only one artichoke root at a time; usually two or three pounds of tubers will be found on the one root. Tuberous artichokes do not store well; a week or 10 days in a plastic bag in refrigerator vegetable bin is about the limit for perfection.

Leeks are not so much of a job to get from the ground, but are perhaps more difficult to clean.

Soaking in water is to be avoided with all garden produce for into the water will go the water soluble nutrients, and you can't use the muddy cleaning water for soup! So don't soak.

Lift enough leeks at one time for two meals if you like them twice a week. A small one can be used to make soup stock, to flavor a casserole, or as a great flavor agent for quick cooked vegetable goulash.

I like to use some of the green near the white part for soup, but most people discard all the green.

Careful washing of leeks before cooking is needed to successfully serve these healthful vegetables since a few fine grains of soil remaining between the base of the leaves will spoil a whole serving.

The only way to be sure the edible part is quite free of grit is to run tap water through the loose leaf part. Don't soak, or as with other vegetables and fruits, many nutrients are lost.

All our winter-grown vegetables need care in preparation because rain and wind will take particles of soil into endive, swiss chard, kale and the little winter cabbage sprout heads.

But it is the root vegetables like winter turnip, winter radish, parsnip, Jerusalem artichoke and leeks that take a bit of time to deal with outdoors. Otherwise the extra wet soil is brought indoors where it does not belong.

My suggestion is to lift a week's supply of any of these vegetables at one time, choosing whatever seems the best kind of weather for the work. An hour during the "day off" a person has is well spent in this gathering of one's own fresh vegetables, to use with those already being stored indors or in a freezer.

Don't neglect the outdoor ones in winter; use them now while at their best.

Slashed Art Restored

LONDON (AP) — A 17th-century French painting that was shredded with a kitchen knife by a vandal in the National Gallery went on exhibit again today.

The Adoration of the Golden Calf by Nicholas Poussin has been "completely restored and is a resurrection," said Prof. John Hale, chairman of the trustees of the gallery.

The slashing occurred in April

The Lord Gave a Hand

VASHON ISLAND, Wash. (AP) — Relying on the Lord and a handy bit of information remembered from childhood, 70-year-old Viola Patience took on a raging, 250-pound ram and won.

The ram, which was being boarded on Arthur and Viola Patience's five-acre farm, broke open a gate and escaped from a pasture into the couple's front yard on Tuesday.

When Patience, 82, tried to return the ram to pasture, it knocked him down and charged him repeatedly, breaking his leg and causing head injuries, cuts and bruises.

"Suddenly I heard my husband screaming my name," Mrs. Patience recalled Wednesday.

"The ram would back up about 10 feet, put his head down and charge forward, butting my husband with all his strength," she said.

Mrs. Patience picked up a board about 90 centimetres long and swatted the ram twice on the nose.

"It didn't hurt him at all," she said. "First he butted the stick right out of my hands, then he butted me in the legs and knocked me flat."

She then heard her husband say: "I'm trying to get up and help you, but he's broken my leg."

"Don't you move," Mrs. Patience called back.

With the ram's attack centered on her, Mrs. Patience suddenly recalled something she learned while growing up on a Utah farm: Rams have very sensitive ears.

So the third time the ram charged, she grabbed one of his ears and was able to lead the beast back to the pasture.

"But as quick as I closed the gate on him, he butted the gate open again and came after me once more," she said.

This time, the ram knocked her flat in the carport of their home, she said.

"I called to the Lord and told him he'd have to help me because I'm not strong enough to handle that ram alone," she said. "Then I grabbed one of his ears and twisted it right around a horn."

Mrs. Patience wrestled the ram by its ear for 23 metres to a highway that passes the farm and waited for help.

"I'm only five feet one inch tall, and I don't weigh half as much as that ram," said Mrs. Patience. "There's no way I could have controlled that beast without the Lord helping."

Two men and a woman in their early 20s finally stopped and came to Mrs. Patience's rescue, helping hold the ram while she tied it to a tree.

Mrs. Patience — suffering a broken wrist, gashes on both legs and numerous bruises — was rushed with her husband to Harborview Medical Center in Seattle after the attack Tuesday.

Allan Feisst, who owned the ram and was boarding it with the Patiences, shot it Wednesday.

"He's an ex-ram now," Feisst said.

Kidnappers Seek $5M Ransom

SAN SALVADOR (AP) — Left-wing guerrillas have demanded $5 million for the release of a Japanese businessman kidnapped last week, a spokesman for the Japanese Embassy said Wednesday.

The demand was included in a communique from guerrillas of the Armed Forces of National Resistance (FARN), the spokesman said.

FARN, which has claimed responsibility for kidnapping three other foreign businessmen in El Salvador since Nov. 24, also demanded release of an undisclosed number of political prisoners, the spokesman said.

CANADA HAS SOME ENERGY PROBLEMS.

If you are seriously interested in the overall energy situation in Canada, you may well be a bit confused. Opinions range from outright optimism to hopeless gloom and doom. As usual, the truth lies somewhere in between.

Canada has always been rich in energy resources. But it is true that our enormous and growing demand is beginning to outstrip available supply and oil imports are increasingly costly. At the same time, just the basic business of getting the energy from its source of supply, converting it to useable form and bringing it to where it is needed costs more and more each year. And, of course, searching for and developing new resources is extremely costly.

That, in the simplest possible terms, is Canada's overall energy position. Now, still keeping to basics, here are short explanations of where we stand on specific energy resources.

OIL-OUR OWN AND IMPORTED

Oil, right now, is our most critical energy problem. We rely on it for 45% of our energy and the available supply from Canada's existing resources can no longer meet national demands. About one-third of the oil we use is imported. It is increasingly costly and there is always a risk of having it reduced in an emergency.

In 1977, the gross amount that went out of Canada as a result of buying foreign oil was 3 billion dollars – that's $480 per family per year.

Increasing world demand on foreign oil sources could mean that, in future, they will be unable to produce enough oil to meet world demand. Canada can't afford to become over-dependent on foreign oil. We have given a commitment to hold imports in 1985 to one-third of our oil demand, or 800,000 barrels a day, whichever is less.

If we do not conserve what we have, and develop our own resources or find alternative supplies, we will be in an increasingly high-risk position. We have to develop new and difficult resources such as the heavy oils and oil sands.

While the oil sands deposits are huge, the available supply is small. Oil has to be separated from sand in huge plants. The newly-opened Syncrude plant cost over 2 billion dollars, yet will supply only 7 per cent of Canada's daily oil requirements. Further development will be slow and costly.

Exploration for oil in the Arctic and other frontier regions is also expensive. And if major oil finds are made there the costs of production will be high.

As you are aware, the prices of oil are higher now. And that's been a necessary change to assure that the more expensive oil sources can be developed. These projects, such as the Syncrude plant, wouldn't be possible without the higher prices authorized by federal and provincial governments.

NATURAL GAS

Natural gas accounts for 18% of Canada's total energy consumption. Recent exploration successes in Western Canada and the Arctic Islands have resulted in a brighter outlook for gas than for oil. In fact, natural gas may be vital as a replacement fuel for oil.

However, in some places in Canada, gas is not readily available as a fuel. Pipelines will have to be extended to service these markets. More high-cost exploration is still necessary. Development of these frontier resources will be extremely difficult and costly. We should seek opportunities to improve gas transportation systems, including an extension of the natural gas pipeline east of Montreal.

ELECTRICITY

Electricity is a versatile premium energy, particularly suitable for high-performance work such as lighting and driving motors.

In Canada today, water generated power supplies more than 70 per cent of our electricity, or about ⅓ of our total energy. The great advantage of hydro power is that it is a renewable source of energy. However, many suitable hydro sites in Canada have already been developed or are too remote to be developed economically. Thermal generation supplies the other 30% of our electricity but burning fossil fuels for electricity creates a large energy waste factor.

So, in the future, as the country's electrical demands continue to grow, hydro power will account for a progressively smaller portion of the total and more electricity will come from such sources as coal, nuclear energy and forest wastes. But conserving electricity helps save dollars for the individual as well as the country.

NUCLEAR POWER

Canada has designed and built the world-famous CANDU nuclear power reactors for electricity, and has substantial uranium deposits for them. These CANDU reactors are based on a Canadian concept which uses natural uranium as the fuel while heavy water moderates the fission process. An advantage of nuclear power is that it would take less than 250 grams (about ½ pound) of uranium to produce enough electricity for the average Canadian household for one year. At present, nuclear power contributes about 2% of our total energy, but about 27% of the electricity consumed in Ontario.

While nuclear plants require a very large initial investment, their delivered energy costs are competitive with other energy sources. The 10 to 12 year lead time for planning and construction is similar with that for fossil electric plants. However, the potential of nuclear power, as with other energy sources, must be balanced against the social, economic and environmental impacts of its generation.

CANADIAN COAL

Canada has abundant coal deposits, most of which are found in the West and the Maritime provinces. Major markets are in Central Canada, however, and this means high transportation costs. At the present time coal supplies about 9% of total energy demands in Canada, of which 3.6% is from Canadian mines. The rest is imported from the U.S.

The conversion of coal to a gas or liquid fuel is an exciting area of research that promises to increase its potential as a source of energy. But coal gasification and liquefaction are not expected to have an impact on production until the late 1980s.

An example of a contemporary use for coal is the co-operation between Nova Scotia and New Brunswick and the federal government in the development of local coal for use as a replacement for oil in generating electricity.

FUEL FROM BIOMASS

Modern science has a new term. Biomass conversion, that means the use of wood and organic materials to produce energy. Bacteria that work on organic materials produce a gas that, when collected, can be used as a source of energy, or the biomass can simply be burned as fuel. The possibilities are extensive, especially in forestry.

Research on improved methods of collecting and converting the biomass is necessary in order to expand its role as a fuel source. But it may contribute as much as 7% of our total energy within a decade. A new federal program will assist forest industry firms to convert their plants to use forest wastes as fuel.

SOLAR ENERGY

Solar energy offers possibilities for widespread use across Canada. However, introduction of solar technology will be a gradual process. It will not transform the energy situation overnight. Popular enthusiasm for solar heating often tends to outrun current technical and economic realities. There's still a lot of industrial development and testing to be done to improve the efficiency and decrease the cost of solar, home heating.

There's also a need for laws to protect the owner of a solar heated house against assessment practices or shade which could render his solar investment uneconomic.

A new federal program will encourage establishment of a strong Canadian solar equipment manufacturing industry. Between 1978 and 1983, the federal government will purchase substantial amounts of Canadian solar equipment for federal buildings under a program known as PUSH. (Purchase and Use of Solar Heating.)

Solar cells can capture and convert sunlight into electricity as we saw in the operation of spacecraft. At the moment, however, the cost of solar electricity would be far higher than hydro electricity.

OTHER RENEWABLE SOURCES

The wind and the tides are two old-fashioned but appealing potential sources of energy. Windmills were in use hundreds of years ago. Modern windmills, some of novel design, are being developed in Canada and abroad. They are mainly suitable, at present, in remote areas with high prevailing winds.

In the Maritimes, energy from the Bay of Fundy tides may, in the foreseeable future, be developed for the region. This could be important in an area heavily dependent on foreign oil. The federal government, in co-operation with the provinces and private industry, is supporting increased research and development of these and other renewable energy forms.

YOUR PART IN ANSWERING THE ENERGY PROBLEM

Energy security depends on all of us. If 23 million Canadians each do their part to help conserve the energy we have, we're bound to save a large amount. This will be vital in keeping our oil imports, and the cost to the nation, to a safe level in coming decades. And it simply makes sense to save energy. When it comes to replacing today's barrel of oil tomorrow, the production cost will be several times as high.

Per capita, Canadians use more energy than any other nation.

Do we really need to use so much? The potential for cutting waste is large. Do your part and you'll be saving money for yourself and for the nation. And you'll be helping assure Canada a more secure future.

Jail Terms Handed Pair In Gun Case

Two men were given jail terms Wednesday for being in possession of sawed-off shotguns in Saanich on Sept. 22.

Dean Wesley Bowman, 18, was sentenced to nine months, and Paul Douglas MacRae, 25, got one year after they pleaded guilty to having prohibited weapons near Elk Lake.

The terms will be served concurrently with sentences being served for previous offences.

Judge E.J.C. Stewart was told the men were on bail when police watched the house at 5327 Hamsterly where they were reported to be. Another occupant of the house had reported two men firing shotguns and a stakeout was ordered.

The accused were seen later coming out of the house carrying packages like rolled up paper bags. They began hitch-hiking on Patricia Bay Highway, but when police moved toward them, they ran for the bush.

Bowman was arrested after a chase and MacRae was picked up a short time later walking in the lake. A tracking dog found one wrapped up gun in the bush and next day the other was found on the lakeshore.

The shotguns had been cut down from single-barrelled sporting guns to weapons with 10¼-12⅛-inch barrels, measuring about 17 inches over-all.

Stewart, noting there is no innocent purpose for such firearms, told the two, "I am well satisfied that if you weren't here on this charge you would be before some court on much more serious charges."

Both had previous convictions for breaking, entering and theft and possession of stolen property, while Bowman had also been convicted for obstruction and public nuisance. MacRae, in addition, had been convicted for taking a car without consent, assault causing bodily harm and possession of a narcotic.

The preliminary hearing in provincial court into a charge of conspiracy to import 13 tons of marijuana was adjourned Wednesday until Jan. 4 by Judge Reg Moir.

The hearing, scheduled for six weeks and started Nov. 20, was in its third week.

Moir declined to deal with an application by one of the 17 accused, 34-year-old Robert Sherman Miller of North Vancouver, for the return of the vessels Sunfish and Weatherly.

The vessels were seized by RCMP in connection with the July 15 operation off the west coast of Vancouver Island near Tofino.

William Bruce Tucker, 1300 Yates, is charged with attempted murder and armed robbery in connection with the stabbing of a 19-year-old University of Victoria student Monday night at the apartment building where both lived.

Defence lawyer Ed De Walle asked for a further two days before dealing with election and possible bail hearing for two brothers.

David Ronald Hansen, 18, and Ronald Kelsberg Hansen, 19, both of 1870 McKenzie, are charged with breaking and entering a medical building at 1105 Pandora Tuesday morning.

Allan remanded them in custody until Friday.

A 17-year-old Lake Cowichan girl who went on a shoplifting spree which netted $153.98 in goods from Eaton's Nov. 29 was given a suspended sentence, placed on six months' probation and ordered to perform 80 hours of community service work.

Terri Lynn Godfrey pleaded guilty to theft under $200.

Lang told the court the girl took a wallet, clock, purse, sweater and umbrella from the store and walked out without paying for it. When caught, Lang said she had no money on her.

Fined for drinking-driving offences were: David Austin Brown, 19, of 2555 Lansdowne, $450; Robert John Walker, 30, of 580 Forward, $450; Lawrence Barney Fehr, 32, of 1147 View, $450; Guenter Wille Eric Wolff, 46, of 431 Powell, $450; Uwe Tschirsch, 28, of 1571 Kangaroo, $450; Peter Louie Martin Day, 41, of 1027 Colville, $400; and Edward Frank Phillips, 46, of 676 Rockingham, $50.

In addition, Phillips was ordered to perform 50 hours of community service work.

Probation Given Trafficker

A Langford woman convicted of trafficking in marijuana last Christmas was given a year's probation by Judge E.J.C. Stewart in county court Wednesday.

Darlene Anne Doucette, 18, was found guilty by a jury in November, 11 months after RCMP picked her up with seven marijuana cigarettes and lists recording sales of marijuana.

Her apartment yielded a set of scales, plastic bags and marijuana seeds.

In another case, a charge of being in possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking was faced by Wayne Pye, 18, who pleaded guilty and was placed on probation for two years.

Two years probation was also given to Paul Edward Schiller, 19, who sold a small quantity of marijuana in Port Alberni after being persuaded by an undercover policeman to obtain it from an acquaintance.

In another court, Richard Lane Monette, 18, pleaded guilty to possessing stolen cash, jewelery and other articles.

He was sentenced by Judge Herbert L. Skipp to six months in jail concurrent with a term being served for an earlier offence.

Court was told the stolen goods were found in Monette's motel room after certain items were reported missing after a break-in at the home of Jack Knowles, 117 Helmcken.

Skipp suspended sentence and placed Francis Jardal Frajman, 25, on probation for two years for being in possession of stolen tools valued at $1,650. He also ordered 100 hours of community service work.

Frajman, also known as Frank Jerry Frajman, pleaded guilty.

Skipp granted conditional discharges to Faith Barclay and Steven James Swanson after they pleaded guilty to theft and possession of a sailboat owned by Barrie McPhalen, of Delta.

Barclay, also known as Faith Pearce, was placed on probation for six months, her companion for one year.

Lottery Clamps: Curtis

Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis said today he is taking measures to tighten up safeguards and controls on the handling of lottery tickets.

Curtis' statement came in the wake of the dismissal of Jack Stewart as director of the B.C. Lotteries Branch.

Stewart was suspended in October and fired last week on the recommendation of the Western Canadian Lottery Foundation for irregularities involving unsold tickets.

Jim Taylor has been acting director of the B.C. Lotteries Branch since Stewart's dismissal.

Deputy Premier Grace McCarthy said today she can't comment on the firing because Stewart may fight his dismissal or take it to the courts.

The minister said the lottery foundation has a rigorous audit process but obviously one that can be confused.

McCarthy was provincial secretary and responsible for lotteries when Stewart held the $30,000 post.

Stewart is alleged to have cashed seven unsold bonus tickets valued at $25 each in order to finance a retirement function and a gift for a retiring employee.

He has since paid back the $175.

Vance Heading Home As Peace Bid Fails

Times News Services

U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance left Israel for Cairo and home today following a final round of talks with Israeli leaders that failed to reach an accord on a peace treaty he had sought to win by Sunday's deadline.

Before he left Israel a spokesman said Vance may resume what has shaped up as another round of shuttle diplomacy "after Christmas with a view to bring about the signing of an Israeli-Egyptian treaty then."

After Vance's departure, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said that "certain differences" remain in the Egyptian and Israeli positions on the draft treaty. He called a special cabinet session for Friday.

Assistant U.S. Secretary of State Harold Saunders said the proposals brought from Cairo Wednesday were in part Amrican ideas and Egyptian demands, according to the armed forces radio. It quoted Saunders as saying the Americans "have some sympathy for the Egyptian demands."

Saunders also said in a briefing for Israeli reporters that Begin would give Vance a final answer on the new Cairo proposals only after the Friday cabinet meeting.

The cabinet was not expected to make any "spectacular changes" in the Israeli position and was expected to reaffirm Begin's stance, Israeli sources said.

Vance is returning to Washington on orders from President Carter, who instructed him to return Friday — with or without a treaty.

FIRM RETRACTS SIN DEMAND

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. will not force employees to reveal their social insurance numbers on identification badges, the business agent of the employees' union said today.

Ted Williams of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America union in Peterborough said the company has decided to give workers the option of blocking out the social insurance number on the badges or getting new badges displaying an employee number.

The company previously had advised the union that all 4,100 plant employees would be required to wear the new badges displaying their photographs, signatures and social insurance number by Jan. 12 or be barred from the plant.

The union filed an injunction in Ontario Supreme Court on Tuesday to prevent what Williams called the company's misuse of the social insurance number.

KISTLETOE CARRIER was created by B.C. Tel mail clerk Sue Pierre in preparation for puckering that might happen when she makes her appointed rounds Christmas Eve. All you need is a bit of mistletoe, a coat hangar, some tinsel and a lots of time since, ah, what male could resist an invitation like this?

Tel Puts Rate Hike On Hold

No increase in B.C. Telephone rates is seen for a year, the company said today after reporting earnings $25 million higher than allowed by anti-inflation guidelines.

The Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission agreed Wednesday that the additional earnings will be applied to 1979 income, rather than order B.C. Tel to give subscribers a rebate or rollback its rates as it has the authority to do.

The higher-than-expected earnings were partly the result of a work stoppage in late 1977 which continued into February, 1978. It resulted in a $5.5 million reduction in operating expenses.

A substantial increase in toll message traffic starting in July also resulted in higher revenues than forecast.

Under the anti-inflation laws, the telephone company could be ordered to pay direct refunds to its subscribers or roll back prices.

The CRTC, however, said it is allowing the company to retain the excess revenue and to credit it to 1979 operating revenue.

The commission said if the money were refunded to subscribers the most likely result would be an immediate application for an increase in rates.

Bail Pondered For FLQ Couple

MONTREAL (CP) — Jacques and Louise Cossette-Trudel will spend the weekend in jail before finding out whether they are to be released on bail to await trial on charges arising from the 1970 kidnapping of British diplomat James Cross.

The couple entered no plea today when they were arraigned on charges of conspiracy to kidnap, kidnapping, attempted extortion and forcible detention.

After a two-hour hearing, Chief Judge Yves Mayrand of sessions court announced he would delay his decision on bail until Monday. At that time, he is expected to set a date for a preliminary hearing to determine whether the couple must stand trial.

The couple were not required by law to enter a plea at the arraignment. Unless they choose to plead guilty at a later date, a preliminary hearing will be held just as if they had pleaded not guilty.

The Cossette-Trudels did not indicate whether they preferred trial by judge alone or by jury. Chief Judge Mayrand informed them that if they stood trial, they would be tried by jury unless they chose otherwise.

At the request of the defence, the judge imposed a strict publication ban on all arguments during the bail hearing.

While awaiting Monday's ruling, the Cossette-Trudels were expected to be taken to separate provincial detention centres for men and women.

About a dozen policemen ringed the courtroom, checking identification carefully before allowing spectators into the room.

The question of how they would plead has aroused interest because a long trial might, in effect, become a public inquiry into the entire October Crisis. On the other hand, a guilty plea would cut short the proceedings with no testimony.

On Wednesday, Prime Minister Trudeau refused to comment on a statement by Quebec Premier Rene Levesque, who said the eight years the Cossette-Trudels have spent in exile should be taken into account if they are found guilty.

"We all would be better not to meddle with what is before the courts," Trudeau told the Commons.

$100,000 Farewell Present

WINNIPEG (CP) — Frank Griffin, 65, of Kelowna, was given a whopper of a retirement present last week when he received a wallet containing what proved to be a $100,000 winning lottery ticket.

Griffin was given the wallet and Western Express Lottery ticket at a combination birthday—retirement party and had to be reminded to check the newspapers for winning numbers after the Dec. 6 draw.

He said he saw his number listed but, afraid to phone and learn it was all a mistake, he sent the stub by registered mail to lottery officials in Winnipeg.

It will be a searing Christmas in Botswana, with temperatures climbing to 100 degrees F, not only in the sweltering Kalahari Desert to the south but also in the more arable lands to the northeast.

There will be no escape from the heat — or the poverty.

For many, Christmas dinner will be the same as it was the day before and as it will be the day after — a bowl of crushed maize.

Maize is the diet of the very poor in Botswana.

Lacking protein, a maize diet leads to sickness if it is not supplemented.

The grim fact is that children fed exclusivley on maize will get marasmus, an affliction that causes the body to wither away. Protein deficiency research has revealed that the brain never develops properly in children who do not receive adequate protein during the early years of life.

Today in Botswana there is malnutrition, poverty . . . need.

The Unitarian Service Committee of Canada is once again raising funds nationally to help Botswana and other underdeveloped countries in the world. Last year the USC raised $2.8 million and $31,369 of that came from generous Victoria residents.

This Christmas the Times is once again helping the USC raise funds for needy causes. If you want to help you can, just reach for your wallet.

Donations may be made at the Times business office or sent to The Victoria Times, Post Office Box 300, Victoria, V8W 2N4 — or left at any branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia. Cheques should be made payable to the Unitarian Service Committee.

Probe Stalled on ICBC Rip-Off Allegations

An investigation into allegations that an Insurance Corporation of B.C. adjuster in Victoria tried to cheat a Sooke couple has stalled.

An ICBC spokesman said Wednesday completion of the probe is being held up because the claimants, Ian Gilchrist and Karen Lennox, have refused to speak to the investigators.

However, Lennox denies the claim.

In an interview today, she said she and Gilchrist are willing to talk to officials but only in the presence of their lawyer.

"If they (ICBC officials) are really uptight about knowing what happened then all they have to do is look at the story in the newspaper (the Dec. 7 editions of the Times). Those are the true facts.

"We only felt it was important to bring the matter to public attention. The rest is up to ICBC, not us."

The couple allege they overheard an adjuster say he had ripped them off for a set of expensive wheels in a claim for Gilchrist's 1976 Ford, demolished in an accident in Sooke Sept. 29.

When they complained, the adjuster's supervisor, John Lubinich, increased the settlement from $3,400 to $3,935.

Sandy Pearson, senior claims manager for ICBC, said Wednesday he assigned a claims manager in Vancouver and an ICBC employee in Victoria to carry out an "in-depth" investigation into the Sooke couple's allegations.

Pearson said the two are taking written statements from all those involved in the case. He said any suggestion the investigation should be handled by police is totally unwarranted.

A police probe would give the public the impression there is a criminal aspect to the case, he maintained, adding statements given by the adjuster fail to show any intent to defraud.

Don Sandberg, manager of ICBC's special investigation unit which normally looks into allegations of employee wrongdoing, said he has not taken part in the investigation and doesn't expect to be called in.

Pearson said the adjuster based the $3,400 settlement with Gilchrist on an average he received from quotations from two dealers in Victoria.

He said the adjuster was concerned that Gilchrist

'Enough Arms to Start War'

Times News Services

A wide assortment of weapons seized across the country in Canada's biggest gun-smuggling crackdown included enough automatic weapons to start a small war, police said today.

Among them was a rocket launcher said capable of knocking down a plane found in a home in the Toronto suburb of Mississauga.

And in Vanderhoof, one man has been arrested and parts of restricted weapons seized in a raid on a private home.

An RCMP spokesman said that photographs and documents pertaining to the restricted weapons were also seized in the Vanderhoof raid.

The man was to expected to be charged later today.

Eleven men were arrested earlier this week in Ontario, Quebec and Nova Scotia following a six-month investigation by Ontario Provincial Police, RCMP and United States authorities.

The investigations involved trafficking of prohibited weapons in Canada and the U.S.

Constable John Dadd of the Ontario Provincial Police news bureau said today a cache of 200 automatic weapons was discovered in Quebec.

"Perhaps (gun) collectors would be after the odd automatic weapon — but 200?" he said.

The constable said no political connection has been found in the weapons ring and it not yet known how many persons are involved or how many more weapons will be seized.

Police have said they have no evidence of the arms going to international terrorists and believe some of the weapons are used by criminals and motorcycle gangs fighting for control of the illegal drugs trade. Others are for collectors.

Figures released by police so far show about 2,000 weapons seized in Ontario, B.C., Nova Scotia and Quebec. Constable Dadd said FN rifles, which are standard issue in the Canadian Forces, are among weapons found. Police also have found Israeli Uzi machine-guns and A-10 and A-15 ma-

CLC To Back Super Board

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) decided Wednesday to co-operate with the federal government's new board of economic development ministers in a bid to have labor views considered more fully in future government policy-making.

The executive council of the 2.3-million-member congress voted to co-operate with the board, headed by minister Robert Andras, on condition that labor participation is given as much weight as business input.

A congress spokesman said CLC president Dennis McDermott was encouraged by headway he made at recent informal meeting with Prime Minister Trudeau and Labor Minister Martin O'Connell.

The congress spokesman said that after a CLC representation Trudeau promised to have the inflation rate published on the basis of both the old and new formulas used to determine the Consumer Price Index.

The formula for determining the Consumer Price Index was changed last month by Statistics Canada, with the result that union cost-of-living adjustment clauses based on the old formula were thrown into disarray.

The congress also got Trudeau to agree to publish labor's minority report on the findings of 23 industrial study groups set up to make recommendations to the federal and provincial governments.

Labor had dissented from the majority findings by a committee of labor, business and academic representatives but its views were excluded from the report.

As the congress was announcing plans to co-operate with the board, opposition critics in the Commons were attacking it.

Trudeau said in opening debate on the cabinet resolution to set up the board that it would make a major contribution.

The CLC made clear that its decision to co-operate with the new economic board in determining economic policies does not diminish its commitment to support the New Democratic Party politically.

The council was told that as a result of a series of meetings, long-time union rivals the Canadian Paperworkers Union and the International Woodworkers of America have decided to work together.

That means an agreement not to raid each other's membership and opens the possibility of a merger.

UIC Curbs to Put Building Workers on Dole?

OTTAWA (CP) — Thousands of construction workers will be forced to take welfare because of the federal government's proposal to slash the unemployment insurance program, a spokesman for building trades unions said Wednesday.

About 25 per cent of the country's 400,000 construction workers are unemployed and will be particularly hard-hit by the tightened eligibility requirements, union spokesman James McCambly said in a brief to cabinet.

Manpower Minister Bud Cullen missed the construction workers' presentation because he was attending a meeting of the Commons manpower committee, which voted narrowly to pass the contentious bill and send it to the next stage of Parliamentary consideration.

The bill, which now goes back to the Commons and then to the Senate, takes a tough line on repeating claimants.

McCambly said because of the seasonal nature of the construction industry, the proposed bill will make about 13,500 construction workers ineligible for benefits next year.

"The only place to go is welfare."

The building trades leaders also pressed the federal government to increase investment in the construction industry and to make interest payments of more than six per cent on residential mortgages partially tax deductible. The tax exemptions, on a sliding scale pegged to the size of the interest rate, would be aimed at low and middle-income families.

A Canadian family needs a total annual income of $29,000 to afford a house that a family in the U.S. can buy with an income of $14,000 using the commonly accepted standard of 27 per cent of total income for housing payments and property taxes.

"In 1975, only nine per cent of Canadians could afford the average new residence, but 42 per cent of Americans could afford to buy their average new home."

Residential mortgage interest is a root cause of inflationary pressure which can and should be relieved by government, the unions said.

The unions urged the federal government to put pressure on other levels of government to ensure that a surplus supply of serviced land is available at all times for all types of housing.

Developers should not be allowed to create an artificial shortage of land, the brief said.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT . . .
BY DANIEL RIGOLLET

Easy, easy — and so good. Heat ½ cup salad oil in a foil-lined pan, then place 2 cut-up chickens in the hot oil; season with salt, pepper, and oregano. Bake 20 minutes, then turn, season some more, and bake 20 minutes more. Five minutes before serving add fresh mushrooms and lots of parmesan cheese. Heat until cheese is melted.
